General Telephone Seeks Rate Hike

MARION — An application to increase local exchange rates on average of 29 per cent was filed with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio today by General Telephone Co. of Ohio.

General of Ohio and Northern are subsidiaries of General Telephone & Electronics Corp., New York.

If granted by the PUCO, General's annual revenues would be increased $4,288,658, after taxes. Total amount asked is $9,044,353, of which taxes would consume about 52 per cent.

This is General's first request for higher rates since 1958. The company serves 400,000 telephones through 194 central offices in 70 counties.

Robert Wopat cited increasing costs of doing business as the reason for the filing. "Rising taxes, interest rates, wages and general mushrooming costs make it necessary to seek rate relief."

He said the company has employed all possible means to hold down costs. "But now our only choice is to adjust rates upward."

The application includes exchanges served by the former Commonwealth Telephone Co. (Athens area), Troy-Tipp Telephone, Inc. (Troy and Tipp City) and New Burlington Telephone Co. (parts of Clinton, Greene and Warren counties). The three companies were COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Sam Sheppard's long travail with prison and the courts comes to an end here today with his burial here in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

He died last Monday at an East Side residence where he lived with his third wife and her parents.

Dr. Robert A. Evans, Franklin County Coroner, has not returned an official verdict in the case pending completion of chemical tests. He said he had found no indications of violence. An autopsy did not turn up any visible signs of cancer, from which Sheppard believed he suffered.

Sheppard's murder trial more than 15 years ago created headlines across the country. His many court actions, his new trial and subsequent acquittal kept him in the news for many years.

Kirk Again Defies Court Over Schools

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Claude Kirk has again taken over the Manatee County school system to block an integration plan, defying a hands-off order by a federal court.

Kirk suspended Manatee's school board and Supt. Jack Davidson Wednesday for the second time in four days and sent aides to Bradenton to take control of the system and its 17,000 pupils.

The Republican governor said he would take over personally today.

His action came 24 hours after U.S. Dist. Judge Ben Krentzman had reinstated the county officials and ordered Kirk to appear before him Friday on a contempt citation.

Judge Krentzman was not available for comment after Kirk's second suspension order, but Davidson said the jurist had advised him not to resist his ouster from office.

Davidson was originally suspended on the eve of his effort to implement a desegregation order by Krentzman calling for the busing of an additional 2,600 pupils.

Kirk, in an executive order issued in Tallahassee, contended of the Manatee officials' conflict with decisions "of the highest courts in the lands."

Kirk said it has been held that courts have no jurisdiction over a state's chief executive in his performance of a "discretionary executive function."

The governor says he took over the school system here to gain access to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Krentzman ordered the Manatee desegregation in January after five years of litigation. Its implementation would require busing of some pupils up to 12 miles from their homes to achieve a ratio of 73 white to 22 black in all schools.

"I still maintain it is not a sound thing to do this late in the school year," Davidson said Wednesday, "but we are going to follow the law."

Senate OKs Pay Boost For Workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill boosting salaries of postal workers and most other federal employees by 6 per cent has passed the Senate after surviving a move to trim the $2.5 billion measure.

Born in collective bargaining negotiations following the nation's first postal strike, the general pay raise bill was approved 84 to 1 Wednesday and sent to the House despite attacks that it is fiscally irresponsible.

Amendments to limit pay raises to postal workers and the military, bar congressional employees from pay hikes and substitute a $400 cash raise for the across-the-board formula went down to defeat.

The final vote, with only Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., dissenting, did not reflect the anger of some senators.

"You're going to continue to pay the people who violated the law by striking and you're going to reward them with a pay raise," declared Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb.

"The simple fact is that there's no money in the till to pay for this irresponsible extravagance. We haven't the courage to pay the people sufficiently to pay for even the day-to-day needs of this government."

Curtis' amendment to strike all but postal and military personnel from the bill failed by a heavy vote, as did Arkansas Sen. J. W. Fulbright's move to provide for a $400 cash raise. Curtis also lost on an amendment to remove legislative employees from the bill.

promises total collapse if left unchanged.

"The Post Office Department has been in serious trouble for years," Blount told a congressional committee this week. Now, with last month's mail strike fresh in most lawmakers' minds, the postmaster general's year-long battle for postal reorganization may be nearing a successful conclusion.

In an Associated Press interview, Blount discussed the department's problems and the hopes for improvement held out by reorganization.

South Viets Move Into Cambodia

ROUTE ONE, CAMBODIAN-SOUTH VIETNAMESE BORDER (AP) — South Vietnamese troops have moved into Cambodia, apparently with their American advisers, to reinforce the Cambodian frontier garrison on Route One against the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

Visual evidence today indicated that American advisers were taking part in the first known instance of South Vietnamese military forces establishing themselves on Cambodian soil since the overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk on March 18 created a more favorable climate in Phnom Penh for such operations.

Two uniformed Americans were seen at this key crossing point on the highway between Saigon and Phnom Penh. One was an Army officer on the Cambodian side of the border.

South Vietnamese forces are in Cambodia at the request of Cambodian officials, Vietnamese border police told newsmen.

The barbed wire barricades and claymore mines at the border that long blocked Route One to vehicles have been removed. South Vietnamese army trucks and jeeps moved freely back and forth with troops and equipment.

Vietnamese soldiers could be seen clearly, building defensive bunkers around the Cambodian border station compound 200 yards to the west. A Cambodian flag flew above their heads.

The U.S. Army officer climbed into a jeep at the Cambodian compound. As a Cambodian officer drove him across the border into Vietnam, the American suddenly realized newsmen's cameras were aimed at him, and he tried to hide behind the jeep seat.

The jeep spun around and went back into Cambodia. It returned a few minutes later, this time with the South Vietnamese commander of the local militia unit.

This officer, who had been friendly to an Associated Press reporter and his photographer on previous visits to the border, turned away handshakes and ordered them out of the Vietnamese border compound, adding (Continued on Page 2)

138 Americans Lose Lives During Week

SAIGON (AP) — The new enemy offensive pushed American battlefield deaths last week to their highest weekly total in six months and inflicted the heaviest South Vietnamese losses in more than two years.

The allies' weekly casualty report said 138 Americans, 754 South Vietnamese and 3,336 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed in action, while 1,179 Americans and 1,716 government troops were wounded.

The enemy total was the highest in seven months.

An informed source said the step-up in enemy attacks and the increased allied casualties would be a factor in President Nixon's decision on further American troop withdrawals from Vietnam.

But he added: "This type of action was fully anticipated. We have said all along the enemy has the capability of launching highpoints. It is not something unanticipated. It has figured in the equation for troop withdrawals all along."

The weekly summary raised the total number of American casualties reported in the war to 41,274 killed and 272,281 wounded. The Saigon government's military casualties total 103,261 killed and 212,065 wounded, while the allies claim to have killed 618,061 of the enemy.

In the first week of the 1968 Tet offensive, the enemy's biggest of the war, the allies reported 416 Americans, 784 South Vietnamese troops and 15,690 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed, or a 13-1 kill ratio in favor of the allies.

In the opener last week of the current offensive, the kill ratio was 3.7 to 1 — because the enemy is not exposing large troop formations to American firepower as they did in 1968, American officers said. Instead they are using rockets, mortars and small commando-sapper squads to minimize their own losses.

Swigert Undergoes Tests To Go On Apollo 13 Mission

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Backup astronaut John L. Swigert Jr. begins a crash training program today to determine whether he can replace a measles-threatened member of the Apollo 13 crew in time to take off for the moon Saturday.

Swigert is to climb aboard a spaceship simulator with James A. Lovell Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr. to practice such critical maneuvers as rendezvous and docking in lunar orbit and abort situations on the launch pad and near the moon.

The big question is whether Swigert, who has never flown in space, can work smoothly with the other two in maneuvers that require close and rapid coordination.

Lovell, Haise and Thomas K. Mattingly II have practiced together as a team more than two years, first as backup pilots for Apollo 11, man's first moon-landing mission, and then as the prime crew for Apollo 13. Observers say they are a superbly coordinated team.

Mattingly hasn't been dropped from the mission, but all indications are that he will be because of his exposure and lack of immunity to German measles.

Lovell, the Apollo 13 commander and a veteran of three previous space flights, reportedly voiced initial opposition to a late substitution, but later agreed to give Swigert a chance. Lovell may make the final decision after the trials are complete Friday.

The commander, according to informed sources, preferred postponing the flight from Saturday until the next favorable launch date, May 9, so he could keep his crew intact.

Lovell and Haise hope to land in the ancient lunar highlands of Fra Mauro, and Saturday is the only day in April in which they could be launched to reach that target.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' personal physician, said Wednesday night that Mattingly's chances of catching German measles are "very, very high."

Mattingly would be retained as a member of the Apollo 13 crew only if his blood samples showed a sudden rise in antibodies to German measles. Berry said this was unlikely, but tests were continuing.

The carrier of the disease who exposed the other Apollo 13 crewmen is Charles Duke, one of the backup astronauts along with Swigert and John W. Young. Blood tests showed that Lovell, Haise and Swigert are immune to the disease, but not Mattingly.

Berry said Duke apparently caught the measles from children of a friend in the astronaut community near Houston's Manned Spacecraft Center.

Vacancy On Supreme Court May Become Political Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — That vacancy on the Supreme Court — and the long, bitter struggle it symbolizes — may be the major issue of the coming congressional election campaigns.

President Nixon will supply the Republican signal when he sets a timetable for selecting a new nominee, a third choice for the seat the Senate denied G. Harrold Carswell.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kans., already has wired the President, and followed up with a telephone call, urging the postponement of any new court appointment until after the Nov. 3 congressional elections.

That way, Dole said, Nixon could take to the voters the issue of a court shift from activism to a more conservative course.

"He didn't say yes and he didn't say no," Dole said after making his suggestion to Nixon. "But he did say this is going to take some time."

If it takes until campaign time, that in itself will be a political signal, and the Senate rejection of Southern conservatives Carswell and Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., will echo through the autumn oratory.

"They've raised the issue that the people don't want Carswell," Dole said after the Senate vote. "Well, they're not going to get Carswell. But do they want to change the court?"

"It may be easier to change the Senate than to change the Supreme Court," Dole said.

"I believe that would backfire on the Republicans," said Oklahoma Sen. Fred R. Harris, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee. "Are they going to purge members of their own party?"

Thirteen Republicans joined 38 Democrats in voting to reject

Carswell 51 to 45. Three of them, Sens. Winston L. Prouty of Vermont, Charles Goodell of New York, and Hiram L. Fong of Hawaii, are up for election this year.

Carswell's Senate champions urged Nixon to press again for a conservative justice. Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., and a half-dozen colleagues, put that in political terms, too. "The American people spoke clearly in 1968 in favor of a stricter interpretation of the laws," Hruska said.

Students Go On Rampage At Bluffton

BLUFFTON, Ohio (AP) — Fifty policemen and sheriff's deputies converged on the Bluffton College campus early today after a student dormitory ruckus spread into the streets.

Bluffton President Robert Kreider immediately protested the intervention by authorities and berated reporters at the scene, saying the incident didn't merit news coverage.

Allen County Sheriff Edward Fair said, however, from 600 to 800 students were roaming the streets shortly after midnight and that seven were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Some building windows were broken and a number of fire hydrants were turned on.

A number of students in the crowd said they were just letting off steam because it had been the first warm day of spring.

Kreider said it was the first incident of its type at the school.

Egypt Shows 'Bomb Victims'

Israelis Deny Hitting Village

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt showed foreign correspondents more than 50 children it said were killed or wounded in an Israeli raid on a village in the eastern Nile Delta Wednesday.

Israel said it had motion pictures to prove that its planes struck only military targets in the raid, which Egypt claimed killed 30 school children and wounded 70 civilians.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said shortly after the raid he sent planes to photograph the attack zone. He said the films showed his planes hit only military targets. Dayan said he was willing to show the pictures.

"Perhaps the Egyptians did keep some children within the military installation," he told a radio interviewer, "and if they did so, then of course they took upon themselves a very heavy responsibility."

The Egyptians said the civilian casualties occurred in the village of Bahr el Bakr, and the casualties were taken to the hospital in the town of El Housaney, in the delta 25 miles northwest of Ismailia.

At the hospital's mortuary, newsmen were shown about 15 bodies of boys and girls 6 to 10 years old. Hospital officials said parents of the other victims had removed their corpses.

The newsmen also saw several crowded rooms filled with wounded children. Some of the boys were dressed in green khaki uniforms, the attire of a student civil defense organization.

Hospital officials said 36 school children were among the 70 civilians wounded in the raid.

The newsmen were told that most of the wounded children "have brain concussions and burns," and an officer of Egypt's official Middle East News Agency maintained the burns resulted from napalm bombs.

Blount Sees Outlook Better For Postal Reorganization

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, an advocate of postal reform long before the nation's first mail strike nearly shut down the postal service, says the agency's greatest problem is not money or man power but "the system."

The system, says Blount, places responsibility for moving the mails with the postmaster general but leaves the purse strings with Congress, demands 20th century service from an 18th century structure, and promises total collapse if left unchanged.

"The Post Office Department has been in serious trouble for years," Blount told a congressional committee this week. Now, with last month's mail strike fresh in most lawmakers' minds, the postmaster general's year-long battle for postal reorganization may be nearing a successful conclusion.

In an Associated Press interview, Blount discussed the department's problems and the hopes for improvement held out by reorganization.

Q. What do you consider to be the greatest problem facing the Post Office Department today?

A. It's the system. The postmaster general has the responsibility for running the post office, but he can't determine what his costs will be or set the prices. The costs and prices are set by Congress. We don't determine the investment policy—the capital facilities and the tools we have to work with. That's set by Congress. The post office just has no control over the vital decisions that affect how it operates.

Q. You are now in the process of negotiating with the seven recognized postal employees unions on a form of reorganization acceptable to both the administration and the workers. Have you reached agreement on any broad areas?

A. In the settlement reached last week with the employees' organizations, we agreed to a retroactive 6 per cent pay increase—not only for postal employees but all government workers and the military. That is without any qualifications. We also agreed to an additional 8 per cent pay increase for postal workers only, dependent on passage of postal reorganization legislation. We have set Friday as the date to come up with a reorganization plan, and we hope to have one sooner.

Q. Recognizing details of the reorganization plan are still being negotiated, what would be generally some of its elements?

A. We've still got a lot of ground to cover, but we are in general agreement that any plan will provide for collective bargaining on pay, working conditions and other issues generally subject to such bargaining in private industry. It also will provide a procedure for resolving impasses on the basis of final, binding arbitration.

Q. Will there be any provision allowing postal employees the right to strike?

A. We do agree that the right to strike will not be in that legislation.

Q. What would happen if a significant number of postal workers would reject the wage-reorganization package, as some scattered organizations have done, calling it a sellout?

A. In the first place, the postal workers don't ratify all this—it's a matter of congressional action. Secondly, it's my view (Continued on Page 2)

General Telephone Seeks Rate Hike

MARION — An application to increase local exchange rates on average of 29 per cent was filed with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio today by General Telephone Co. of Ohio.

General of Ohio and Northern are subsidiaries of General Telephone & Electronics Corp., New York.

If granted by the PUCO, General's annual revenues would be increased $4,288,658, after taxes. Total amount asked is $9,044,353, of which taxes would consume about 52 per cent.

This is General's first request for higher rates since 1958. The company serves 400,000 telephones through 194 central offices in 70 counties.

Robert Wopat cited increasing costs of doing business as the reason for the filing. "Rising taxes, interest rates, wages and general mushrooming costs make it necessary to seek rate relief."

He said the company has employed all possible means to hold down costs. "But now our only choice is to adjust rates upward."

The application includes exchanges served by the former Commonwealth Telephone Co. (Athens area), Troy-Tipp Telephone, Inc. (Troy and Tipp City) and New Burlington Telephone Co. (parts of Clinton, Greene and Warren counties). The three companies were acquired after General's 1958 rate filing and were not a part of it.

Financial data in the application are pinpointed on operations as of June 30, 1969.

As of that date, the company's adjusted net operating income totaled $10,124,411, producing a 5.49 per cent rate of return. The proposal asks to increase income to $14,413,069, boosting the rate of return to 7.82 per cent.

If granted, the following monthly rates would be in effect (present rates are listed in parentheses):

Ashville and Circleville residential — 1-party, $8.75 ($7.75); 2-party, $7.95 ($6.85); 4-party, $7.25 ($5.90); 8-party, $7.50 ($5.90).

Ashville and Circleville business — 1-party, $17.70 ($13.90); 2-party, $15.95 ($11.55); rural, $15.25 ($11.15).

Williamsport, residential — 1-party, $8.75 ($7.50); 2-party, $7.95 ($6.60); 4-party, $7.25 ($5.75); 8-party, $7.50 ($5.75).

Williamsport, business — 1-party, $17.70 ($13.15); 2-party, $15.95 ($11.10); rural, $15.25 ($10.40).

Laurelville, residential — 1-party, $8.15 ($6.75); 2-party, $7.35 ($5.85); 4-party, $6.65 ($5); 8-party, $6.90 ($5).

Laurelville, business — 1-party, $15.90 ($10.90); 2-party, $14.15 ($8.60); rural, $13.45 ($7.40).

Amanda, residential — 1-party, $9.05 ($7.95); 2-party, $8.25 ($7.25); 4-party, $7.55 ($6.05); 8-party, $7.80 ($6.05).

Amanda, business — 1-party, $18.60 ($14.65); 2-party, $16.85 ($12.60); rural, $16.15 ($11.90).

The rate of return is based on a utility's plant valuation dedicated to public service.

General's application lists its valuation at $184,357,119.

General's last rate case was filed in 1958, Commonwealth's in 1960 and Troy-Tipp's in 1950. Besides increases in basic service rates, the application is proposing changes in various one-time installation or service charges. These changes would yield $693,995, or about 13 per cent of the additional revenues asked.

Chief changes include raising the $5 new residence phone installation charge to $12; a boost from $5 to $7.50 to move a phone inside a residence, and a $7.50 charge for installing a residence extension. There presently is no charge for the latter, Wopat said.

Also proposed is a 50-cent monthly charge for a non-listed number.

The proposal also seeks to raise local pay phone calls in

In the first week of the 1968 Tet offensive, the enemy's biggest of the war, the allies reported 416 Americans, 784 South Vietnamese troops and 15,690 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed, or a 13-1 kill ratio in favor of the allies.

In the opener last week of the current offensive, the kill ratio was 3.7 to 1 — because the enemy is not exposing large troop formations to American firepower as they did in 1968. American officers said. Instead they are using rockets, mortars and small commando-sapper squads to minimize their own losses.

As the enemy offensive continued today, South Vietnamese troops drove to within a few

Swigert Undergoes Tests To Go On Apollo 13 Mission

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Backup astronaut John L. Swigert Jr. begins a crash training program today to determine whether he can replace a measles-threatened member of the Apollo 13 crew in time to take off for the moon Saturday.

Swigert is to climb aboard a spaceship simulator with James A. Lovell Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr. to practice such critical maneuvers as rendezvous and docking in lunar orbit and abort situations on the launch pad and near the moon.

The big question is whether Swigert, who has never flown in space, can work smoothly with the other two in maneuvers that require close and rapid coordination.

Lovell, Haise and Thomas K. Mattingly II have practiced together as a team more than two years, first as backup pilots for Apollo 11, man's first moon-landing mission, and then as the prime crew for Apollo 13. Observers say they are a superbly coordinated team.

Mattingly hasn't been dropped from the mission, but all indications are that he will be because of his exposure and lack of immunity to German measles.

Lovell, the Apollo 13 commander and a veteran of three previous space flights, reportedly voiced initial opposition to a late substitution, but later agreed to give Swigert a chance. Lovell may make the final decision after the trials are complete Friday.

The commander, according to informed sources, preferred postponing the flight from Saturday until the next favorable launch date, May 9, so he could keep his crew intact.

Lovell and Haise hope to land in the ancient lunar highlands of Fra Mauro, and Saturday is the only day in April in which they could be launched to reach that target.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' personal physician, said Wednesday night that Mattingly's chances of catching German measles are "very, very high."

Mattingly would be retained as a member of the Apollo 13 crew only if his blood samples showed a sudden rise in antibodies to German measles. Berry said this was unlikely, but tests were continuing.

The carrier of the disease who exposed the other Apollo 13 crewmen is Charles Duke, one of the backup astronauts along with Swigert and John W. Young. Blood tests showed that Lovell, Haise and Swigert are immune to the disease, but not Mattingly.

Berry said Duke apparently caught the measles from children of a friend in the astronaut community near Houston's Manned Spacecraft Center.

Vacancy On Supreme Court May Become Political Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — That vacancy on the Supreme Court — and the long, bitter struggle it symbolizes — may be the major issue of the coming congressional election campaigns.

President Nixon will supply the Republican signal when he sets a timetable for selecting a new nominee, a third choice for the seat the Senate denied G. Harrold Carswell.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kans., already has wired the President, and followed up with a telephone call, urging the postponement of any new court appointment until after the Nov. 3 congressional elections.

That way, Dole said, Nixon could take to the voters the issue of a court shift from activism to a more conservative course.

"He didn't say yes and he didn't say no," Dole said after making his suggestion to Nixon. "But he did say this is going to take some time."

If it takes until campaign time, that in itself will be a political signal, and the Senate rejection of Southern conservatives Carswell and Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., will echo through the autumn oratory.

"They've raised the issue that the people don't want Carswell," Dole said after the Senate vote. "Well, they're not going to get Carswell. But do they want to change the court?"

"It may be easier to change the Senate than to change the Supreme Court," Dole said.

"I believe that would backfire on the Republicans," said Oklahoma Sen. Fred R. Harris, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee. "Are they going to purge members of their own party?"

Thirteen Republicans joined 38 Democrats in voting to reject

Carswell 51 to 45. Three of them, Sens. Winston L. Prouty of Vermont, Charles Goodell of New York, and Hiram L. Fong of Hawaii, are up for election this year.

Carswell's Senate champions urged Nixon to press again for a conservative justice. Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., and a half-dozen colleagues, put that in political terms, too. "The American people spoke clearly in 1968 in favor of a stricter interpretation of the laws," Hruska said.

Students Go On Rampage At Bluffton

BLUFFTON, Ohio (AP) — Fifty policemen and sheriff's deputies converged on the Bluffton College campus early today after a student dormitory ruckus spread into the streets.

Bluffton President Robert Kreider immediately protested the intervention by authorities and berated reporters at the scene, saying the incident didn't merit news coverage.

Allen County Sheriff Edward Fair said, however, from 600 to 800 students were roaming the streets shortly after midnight and that seven were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Some building windows were broken and a number of fire hydrants were turned on.

A number of students in the crowd said they were just letting off steam because it had been the first warm day of spring.

Kreider said it was the first incident of its type at the school.

Perhaps the Egyptians did keep some children within the military installation," he told a radio interviewer, "and if they did so, then of course they took upon themselves a very heavy responsibility."

The Egyptians said the civilian casualties occurred in the village of Bahr el Bakr, and the casualties were taken to a hospital in the town of El Housaneya, in the delta 25 miles northwest of Ismailia.

At the hospital's mortuary, newsmen were shown about 15 bodies of boys and girls 6 to 10 years old. Hospital officials said parents of the other victims had removed their corpses.

The newsmen also saw several crowded rooms filled with wounded children. Some of the boys were dressed in green khaki uniforms, the attire of a student civil defense organization.

Hospital officials said 36 school children were among the 70 civilians wounded in the raid.

The newsmen were told that most of the wounded children "have brain concussions and burns," and an officer of Egypt's official Middle East News Agency maintained the burns resulted from napalm bombs.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Sam Sheppard's long travail with prison and the courts comes to an end here today with his burial here in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

The burial service at Forest Lawn follows private services for his family and a few friends at 10 a.m. in the Weir-Arend Funeral Home's East Chapel.

The former Bay Village Osteopath who was convicted of the 1954 slaying of his pregnant wife Marilyn and served 10 years in Ohio Penitentiary before winning acquittal in a new trial.

He died last Monday at an East Side residence where he lived with his third wife and her parents.

Dr. Robert A. Evans, Franklin County Coroner, has not returned an official verdict in the case pending completion of chemical tests. He said he had found no indications of violence. An autopsy did not turn up any visible signs of cancer, from which Sheppard believed he suffered.

Sheppard's murder trial more than 15 years ago created headlines across the country. His many court actions, his new trial and subsequent acquittal kept him in the news for many years.

Blount Sees Outlook Better For Postal Reorganization

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, an advocate of postal reform long before the nation's first mail strike nearly shut down the postal service, says the agency's greatest problem is not money or man power but "the system."

The system, says Blount, places responsibility for moving the mails with the postmaster general but leaves the purse strings with Congress, demands 20th century service from an 18th century structure, and promises total collapse if left unchanged.

"The Post Office Department has been in serious trouble for years," Blount told a congressional committee this week. Now, with last month's mail strike fresh in most lawmakers' minds, the postmaster general's year-long battle for postal reorganization may be nearing a successful conclusion.

In an Associated Press interview, Blount discussed his department's problems and the hopes for improvement held out by reorganization.

Q. What do you consider to be the greatest problem facing the Post Office Department today?

A. It's the system. The postmaster general has the responsibility for running the post office, but he can't determine what his costs will be or set the prices. The costs and prices are set by Congress. We don't determine the investment policy—the capital facilities and the tools we have to work with. That's set by Congress. The post office just has no control over the vital decisions that affect how it operates.

Q. You are now in the process of negotiating with the seven recognized postal employees unions on a form of reorganization acceptable to both the administration and the workers. Have you reached agreement on any broad areas?

A. In the settlement reached last week with the employees' organizations, we agreed to a retroactive 6 per cent pay increase—not only for postal employees but all government workers and the military. That is without any qualifications. We also agreed to an additional 8 per cent pay increase for postal workers only, dependent on passage of postal reorganization legislation. We have set Friday as the date to come up with a reorganization plan, and we hope to have one sooner.

Q. Recognizing details of the reorganization plan are still being negotiated, what would be generally some of its elements?

A. We've still got a lot of ground to cover, but we are in general agreement that any plan will provide for collective bargaining on pay, working conditions and other issues generally subject to such bargaining in private industry. It also will provide a procedure for resolving impasses on the basis on final, binding arbitration.

Q. Will there be any provision allowing postal employees the right to strike?

A. We do agree that the right to strike will not be in that legislation.

Q. What would happen if a significant number of postal workers would reject the wage-reorganization package, as some scattered organizations have done, calling it a sellout?

A. In the first place, the postal workers don't ratify all this — it's a matter of congressional action. Secondly, it's my view (Continued on Page 2)

Jurors Seated For Andrew Kibble Trial

Jurors were seated for the trial today of Andrew W. Kibble, charged with the deaths of three persons in an auto accident last fall.

Kibble is charged with vehicular manslaughter, causing the death of a Cincinnati couple, James and Edith Dunn and a friend, Lawrence O. Shanhan, Rockbridge, on October 17.

Kibble was arraigned before Judge William Ammer early in January following a secret indictment by the first term of the grand jury. He entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and was released under $1,000 bond.

The jury and attorneys Roy Huffer Jr., prosecutor and Richard Gerken, representing Kibble, adjourned shortly before 11 this morning to visit the scene of the multiple-vehicle accident on Route 56 about eight miles southwest of Circleville.

Making up the jury are: C. Gordon Painter, Ruth N. Roof, Josie Shaw, Harry M. Garrett Jr., Doris Seitz, John Stewart, Elizabeth Kirkpatrick, Russell Timmons, Kathryn Neff, Dick Graham, Eveyra Gilman, Gwynnet Bauhan and alternate Carolyn Edstrom.

The border stations have not come under attack recently, but severe fighting has occurred on both sides of the frontier this week, four to five miles to the north in Vietnam and as close as six to ten miles in Cambodia. Viet Cong troops today were reported continuing a slow but steady advance along Route One after occupying the town of Chipou, 10 miles west of the border.

A Vietnamese police officer told the newsmen: "If you had been here yesterday, you would have seen air strikes two and three kilometers away, over there." He pointed down the road into Cambodia.

"If you had come here yesterday," he continued. "The border would have still been closed. You would not have seen all of this."

Another police officer pulled a reporter aside and said in Vietnamese: "Leave soon, or the Viet Cong will kill you."

hundred yards of the Dak Seang Special Forces camp, trying to lift the nine-day-old siege of the remote post in the Central Highlands near the Laotian border.

The government force was reported in heavy, close-hand fighting with the North Vietnamese troops dug in around the small camp.

Enemy gunners overnight slammed more than 100 rocket and mortar shells into Dak Seang, and the North Vietnamese shot down an American helicopter lifting four wounded South Vietnamese from the camp. The helicopter went down 1,000 yards away, and the four American crewmen and four wounded Vietnamese were picked up by another American chopper.

A South Vietnamese artillery base called Tango 3 1/2 miles south of Dak Seang was hit by mortars and rockets at noon today after a sapper attack during the night. Casualties were not known, but three helicopters loaded with wounded arrived at Can Tanh, the government's forward headquarters 10 miles southwest of the Special Forces camp.

U.S. B52s and jet fighter-bombers pounded the hills west of Tango all day. Fighter-bomber pilots reported knocking out four 122-mm rocket launchers loaded and aimed at the artillery base.

Local Motorist Is Fined $250

Drunken driving resulted in three fines against a 23-year-old Circleville man in Municipal Court Thursday.

Thomas A. Reed, Brown St., was spotted by city police last night at Main and Scioto St., making a turn at the intersection with obvious difficulty. He was followed and apprehended by patrolmen on E. Ohio St.

Reed was arrested by the patrolmen when he could produce no valid operator's license and presented fictitious registration for the vehicle. An additional charge of driving while intoxicated was also filed against him.

Judge Sterling Lamb fined Reed $50 each on the first two charges and $150, three days in jail and suspended his license for six months for OMVI.

the Troy-Tipp City area from 5 to 10 cents. Wopat noted this is the only place in Ohio where a local pay phone call is a nickel.

Two major proposals concerning rate bands also are included.

One calls for establishment of a new banding schedule. The other proposes an escalation clause. The latter would put a growing exchange into a higher band without requiring a formal rate case.

Wopat explained an exchange is put into a band according to the number of main telephones in its local toll-free calling area. About half of General's exchanges presently are in a lower band than their calling areas would indicate. Since the 1958 case they have outgrown their band.

"Adoption of the escalation clause would give the company more latitude in expanding toll-free calling areas," Wopat remarked. "And it would be more equitable to customers overall."

The company presently has nine rate bands, as follows: Band 1-0 to 750 phones; Band 2-751 to 2,000; Band 3-2,001 to 3,500; Band 4-3,501 to 5,500; Band 5-5,501 to 9,000; Band 6-9,001 to 16,000; Band 7 - 16,01 to 40,000; Band 8-40,001 to 100,000 and Band 9-100,1 to 768,0.

Proposed bands are: Band 1-0 to 3,000 phones; Band 2-3,001 to 6,000; Band 3-6,001 to 12,000; Band 4-12,001 to 24,000; Band 5-24,001 to 48,000; Band 6-48,001 to 96,000; Band 7-96,001 to 192,000; Band 8-192,001 to 384,000, and Band 9-384,001 to 768,000.

Also noted in the application was the increase in the company's investment per telephone. This has risen from $322 per phone at year-end 1958, to $494 as of last June — an increase of $172, or 53 per cent.

During the same period, taxes (excluding federal income tax) have increased 224 per cent. Further notes in the application indicate increases have been encountered by General in virtually all phases of its business.

The application noted these increases can no longer be offset by revenues at the present level of rates and charges.

The recommendations presented jointly by the unions and the administration are firm and do deal with the issues the employee feel are most important.

Q. Would you ever, under any circumstances, be willing to grant postal employees the right to strike?

A. We send out 30 million welfare checks by mail each month. In addition, people depend on the mail for pension checks, financial transactions and many other things. It's unthinkable to allow the system to break down and not provide strike.

Q. What assurance, then, does the postal worker have that he can attract management attention to his grievances?

A. He has what is the key-stone of the postal reorganization plan—collective bargaining. If parties to the bargaining reach an impasse, that impasse can be resolved by an independent, objective third party. Compare this to congressional action, which is how postal salaries and working conditions are set now.

Q. It is just this process, taking power to set postal salaries out of Congress and making it subject to collective bargaining, that the postal unions have fought in the past. Why has it been so difficult to convince them they would benefit from collective bargaining?

A. You've got to realize that the post office has operated as it has for about 200 years. The postal unions are accustomed to going to Congress for their salary increases and, just like all human beings, they've been resistant to change. Perhaps one of the good things to come out of the strike is that the unions have seen that they can sit down with the post office and negotiate in good faith.

Q. A number of private organizations have made a success of performing services similar to those performed by the post office. Do you ever envision the mail service becoming a totally private industry?

A. If we were just starting the postal system today, we would probably utilize the services of an organization similar to COMSAT (the private, government-sanctioned monopoly that manages the American portion of Intelsat, the international satellite communications system). But we're not just starting the mail today. Anything we do today, we're doing on top of 200 years of tradition. There's no way in the world we could interest private industry in taking over the postal service now. Oh, I suppose its a very, very remote future possibility, but, I assure you, it's a long, long way away from the present.

Q. The administration seems to have nipped its hopes for better mail service on postal reorganization. Will reorganization alone do the job?

A. Reorganization is no panacea. Its main value is that it will allow us to devise a structure that's workable. Then we can utilize the kind of management that can get the job done.

Q. With this new structure, would you intend to add new services to the post office?

A. We have already added some new services. One is the mail-gram, where a letter is transmitted over the Western Union wire and delivered through the post office. This combines the high-speed transmission facilities of the telegraph with the vast distribution facilities of the post office. I would hope we could add more innovations such as this under reorganization.

Child's Body Still Missing
The search for the body of 4-year-old Steven Ray Whaley entered its seventh day today in Washington, C. H.
A full scale search started Friday evening when the tot apparently rode his tricycle into rain-swollen Paint Creek near his home.
The tricycle on which the child was riding was located 200 feet downstream of where he rode into flood waters some 25 minutes after the accident was reported. It is the only trace found of the boy.
Steven, the son of Mrs. Nancy Stodgel of Washington C. H. was playing with his 5-year-old cousin who reported the incident.
Fayette County Civil Defense and its Rescue Unit, Washington C. H. firemen and area volunteers continue the search.

The other American, wearing a khaki uniform without insignia, was inside the Vietnamese compound just east of the border. A jeep parked outside carried the "T" license plate used by American intelligence agents in Vietnam. He avoided the newsmen.

The border stations have not come under attack recently, but severe fighting has occurred on both sides of the frontier this week, four to five miles to the north in Vietnam and as close as six to ten miles in Cambodia. Viet Cong troops today were reported continuing a slow but steady advance along Route One after occupying the town of Chipou, 10 miles west of the border.

A Vietnamese police officer told the newsmen: "If you had been here yesterday, you would have seen air strikes two and three kilometers away, over there." He pointed down the road into Cambodia.

"If you had come here yesterday," he continued. "The border would have still been closed. You would not have seen all of this."

Another police officer pulled a reporter aside and said in Vietnamese: "Leave soon, or the Viet Cong will kill you."

hundred yards of the Dak Seang Special Forces camp, trying to lift the nine-day-old siege of the remote post in the Central Highlands near the Laotian border.

The government force was reported in heavy, close-hand fighting with the North Vietnamese troops dug in around the small camp.

Enemy gunners overnight slammed more than 100 rocket and mortar shells into Dak Seang, and the North Vietnamese shot down an American helicopter lifting four wounded South Vietnamese from the camp. The helicopter went down 1,000 yards away, and the four American crewmen and four wounded Vietnamese were picked up by another American chopper.

A South Vietnamese artillery base called Tango 3 1/2 miles south of Dak Seang was hit by mortars and rockets at noon today after a sapper attack during the night. Casualties were not known, but three helicopters loaded with wounded arrived at Can Tanh, the government's forward headquarters 10 miles southwest of the Special Forces camp.

U.S. B52s and jet fighters-bombers pounded the hills west of Tango all day. Fighter-bomber pilots reported knocking out four 122-mm rocket launchers loaded and aimed at the artillery base.

Local Motorist Is Fined $250

Drunken driving resulted in three fines against a 23-year-old Circleville man in Municipal Court Thursday.

Thomas A. Reed, Brown St., was spotted by city police last night at Main and Scioto St., making a turn at the intersection with obvious difficulty. He was followed and apprehended by patrolmen on E. Ohio St.

Reed was arrested by the patrolmen when he could produce no valid operator's license and presented fictitious registration for the vehicle. An additional charge of driving while intoxicated was also filed against him.

Judge Sterling Lamb fined Reed $50 each on the first two charges and $150, three days in jail and suspended his license for six months for OMVI.

the Troy-Tipp City area from 5 to 10 cents. Wopat noted this is the only place in Ohio where a local pay phone call is a nickel.

Two major proposals concerning rate bands also are included.

One calls for establishment of a new banding schedule. The other proposes an escalation clause. The latter would put a growing exchange into a higher band without requiring a formal rate case.

Wopat explained an exchange is put into a band according to the number of main telephones in its local toll-free calling area. About half of General's exchanges presently are in a lower band than their calling areas would indicate. Since the 1958 case they have outgrown their band.

"Adoption of the escalation clause would give the company more latitude in expanding toll-free calling areas," Wopat remarked. "And it would be more equitable to customers overall."

The company presently has nine rate bands, as follows: Band 1-0 to 750 phones; Band 2-751 to 2,000; Band 3-2,001 to 3,500; Band 4-3,501 to 5,500; Band 5-5,501 to 9,000; Band 6-

9,001 to 16,000; Band 7 - 16,01 to 40,000; Band 8-40,001 to 100,000 and Band 9-100,01 to 768,000.

Proposed bands are: Band 1-0 to 3,000 phones; Band 2-3,001 to 6,000; Band 3-6,001 to 12,000; Band 4-12,001 to 24,000; Band 5-24,001 to 48,000; Band 6-48,001 to 96,000; Band 7-96,001 to 192,000; Band 8-192,001 to 384,000, and Band 9-384,001 to 768,000.

Also noted in the application was the increase in the company's investment per telephone. This has risen from $322 per phone at yearend 1968, to $494 as of last June — an increase of $172, or 53 per cent.

During the same period, taxes (excluding federal income tax) have increased 224 per cent. Further notes in the application indicate increases have been encountered by General in virtually all phases of its business.

The application noted these increases can no longer be offset by revenues at the present level of rates and charges.

Moon Mission Will Differ From Others

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Man's third trip to the moon, scheduled to start Saturday, will differ in many ways from the previous two.

—The landing site is more hazardous but new techniques will be used to help the lander find its target.

—The astronauts will stay longer on the moon's surface than their predecessors, will conduct new experiments that include the first lunar use of power tools, and will be able to take a drink of water if they get thirsty on their moonwalk.

—Not one, but two spacecraft will be purposely crashed onto the lunar surface to obtain seismic information.

—And the Apollo 13 astronauts should get better pictures of it than the pioneers of flights 11 and 12.

The major difference for Apollo 13 is the landing site. Apollos 11 and 12 touched down on relatively smooth plains. James A. Lovell Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr. will attempt to steer their craft into the rugged highlands of Fra Mauro, on the eastern shore of the Ocean of Storms.

They are going to this area of ridges, hills, craters and mammoth boulders to search for rocks that date back perhaps 4.5 billion years to the creation of the moon. The stones collected by the earlier Apollo crews were between 3 billion and 3.5 billion years old.

This time the command ship will dip to within eight miles of the surface before releasing the lunar module (LM)—32 miles closer than Apollo 11 and 12.

The separation at the eight-mile altitude should help them hit the target.

Lovell and Haise plan 33½ hours on the surface and hope to spend two five-hour periods outside their LM. Apollo 11 astronauts were on the moon 21½ hours and spent two hours outside. The Apollo 12 moonmen visited for 32 hours and had two excursions totaling eight hours.

Lovell and Haise plan to devote most of the first outside period to setting up a nuclear-powered science station.

The Apollo 12 astronauts deliberately smashed their 5,000-pound lunar module cabin section on the moon after they returned to the command ship. The impact, equal to a force of 1.2 tons of TNT, sent shudders through the lunar crust that vibrated the seismometer for 55 minutes. A similar impact on earth would vibrate only five or six minutes.

To find out more about this phenomenon, ground controllers plan to crash the burned out 61-foot third stage of the Saturn 5 rocket on the moon after it has shoved Apollo 13 into space. It is to smack into the Ocean of Storms 140 miles west of the Apollo 12 seismometer.

Later, after they have left the moon and rejoined Mattingly, Lovell and Haise will set the computers in their LM and send it hurtling toward a crash-landing between the two seismometers that then will be on the moon.

Aussie Beach 'Diluted Sewage'

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Prince Charles of Britain said Wednesday taking a dip at this city's Elwood beach is "just like swimming in diluted sewage." He tried it.

Charles, who has been visiting this country with his royal mother and father, tossed off his observation during a talk with students at the Melbourne cricket ground, where 45,000 had gathered to meet him and his sister, Princess Anne.

The prince parts with the other members of his family tonight to begin a return by air to Cambridge University, where he is a student.

State Patrol Officer Gets Top Award

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The O. W. Merrell Meritorious Service Award—highest honor for an Ohio State Highway patrolman, was presented Wednesday to Patrolman Benny Mikes of the Springfield Patrol post.

O. W. Merrell, the former highway director who originated the award, personally bestowed it upon Patrolman Mikes "for an outstanding act of courage which he performed on Jan. 6, 1969, in Clark County."

The officer was patrolling Interstate 70 when he observed cars parked along the route. He learned a driver had lost control on the ice-slick highway and veered over an embankment into a ice-covered creek.

The driver had been thrown from the car but his wife was still trapped in the submerged vehicle. In the 10-degree temperature Patrolman Mikes plunged beneath the water and after considerable difficulty finally managed to kick in a window and free the woman and carry her to shore.

He administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until emergency equipment arrived. She died four hours later of cardiac arrest and exposure.

Patrol Supt. Robert M. Chiramonte said "Patrolman Mikes heroic actions have brought great honor on the Ohio State Highway Patrol and make this fine officer one of our most valued assets."

Boy Sentenced For Shoplifting

In the recent session of Juvenile Court, Judge Guy Cline sentenced a 17-year-old Circleville boy to three years probation for shoplifting. The youth was apprehended in a local grocery store.

Two infant children of a Williamsport couple were taken from their parents' custody and placed in the care of the Pickaway County Childrens Service when the pair was judged unsuitable to care for them.

A 15-year-old girl was given into temporary custody of the PCCS when her parents were found incapable of her care.

Eight other cases involving offenses of juveniles were dismissed from the court's jurisdiction. Reasons for the dismissal included the child's moving, joining the service or marriage.

Government Agency Reports Marijuana Study Findings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government health agency says while there is no scientific evidence that marijuana smoking leads automatically to hard drugs, serious questions remain about the effects of its chronic use.

The National Institute of Mental Health said in a paper released Tuesday by a House crime committee the question of possible brain damage from chronic use of strong marijuana preparations such as hashish still is unanswered.

And any authoritative conclusions on long-term marijuana effects are premature until present studies are completed, hopefully in two years, the institute said.

The questions and key portions of answers based on three years of NIMH-directed studies: Q. Should marijuana be classified with the dangerous drugs and narcotics?

A. Marijuana is not a narcotic and was included in that (federal) statutory category incorrectly. Marijuana is a mild hallucinogen. At our present level of knowledge it should be included in the group of dangerous drugs, along with other hallucinogens, stimulants and sedatives.

Q. Is it meaningful to speak of physical or psychological dependency with respect to marijuana?

A. Physical dependency or true addiction does not occur. Psychological dependency is well known in this country and abroad.

Q. Does marijuana use create an attitude that makes it easier or in some cases inevitable for the user to drift into use of other dangerous drugs or "hard narcotics?"

A. In studies which have been done to attempt to answer this question, a third to a half of all chronic marijuana users will also try amphetamines, barbiturates, and less than 5 per cent will try narcotics, like heroin.

About 85 per cent of all heroin addicts admit prior marijuana smoking. Those who do progress to heroin are usually the most emotionally disturbed group.

Q. Does marijuana use cause any organic brain damage or does it have any toxic effect on the body?

A. We do not know. In some countries of the Middle East and Near East, where cannabis preparations have been a part of the culture, it is believed chronic use of the strong preparations, such as hashish, is associated with psychosis and brain damage in some people.

Lovell and Haise plan to devote most of the first outside period to setting up a nuclear-powered science station.

The Apollo 12 astronauts deliberately smashed their 5,000-pound lunar module cabin section on the moon after they returned to the command ship. The impact, equal to a force of 1.2 tons of TNT, sent shudders through the lunar crust that vibrated the seismometer for 55 minutes. A similar impact on earth would vibrate only five or six minutes.

To find out more about this phenomenon, ground controllers plan to crash the burned out 61-foot third stage of the Saturn 5 rocket on the moon after it has shoved Apollo 13 into space. It is to smack into the Ocean of Storms 140 miles west of the Apollo 12 seismometer.

Later, after they have left the moon and rejoined Mattingly, Lovell and Haise will set the computers in their LM and send it hurtling toward a crash-landing between the two seismometers that then will be on the moon.

Aussie Beach 'Diluted Sewage'

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Prince Charles of Britain said Wednesday taking a dip at this city's Elwood beach is "just like swimming in diluted sewage." He tried it.

Charles, who has been visiting this country with his royal mother and father, tossed off his observation during a talk with students at the Melbourne cricket ground, where 45,000 had gathered to meet him and his sister, Princess Anne.

The prince parts with the other members of his family tonight to begin a return by air to Cambridge University, where he is a student.

State Patrol Officer Gets Top Award

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The O. W. Merrell Meritorious Service Award—highest honor for an Ohio State Highway patrolman, was presented Wednesday to Patrolman Benny Mikes of the Springfield Patrol post.

O. W. Merrell, the former highway director who originated the award, personally bestowed it upon Patrolman Mikes "for an outstanding act of courage which he performed on Jan. 6, 1969, in Clark County."

The officer was patrolling Interstate 70 when he observed cars parked along the route. He learned a driver had lost control on the ice-slick highway and veered over an embankment into a ice-covered creek.

The driver had been thrown from the car but his wife was still trapped in the submerged vehicle. In the 10-degree temperature Patrolman Mikes plunged beneath the water and after considerable difficulty finally managed to kick in a window and free the woman and carry her to shore.

He administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until emergency equipment arrived. She died four hours later of cardiac arrest and exposure.

Patrol Supt. Robert M. Chiamonte said "Patrolman Mikes' heroic actions have brought great honor on the Ohio State Highway Patrol and make this fine officer one of our most valued assets."

Boy Sentenced For Shoplifting

In the recent session of Juvenile Court, Judge Guy Cline sentenced a 17-year-old Circleville boy to three years probation for shoplifting. The youth was apprehended in a local grocery store.

Two infant children of a Williamsport couple were taken from their parents' custody and placed in the care of the Pickaway County Childrens Service when the pair was judged unsuitable to care for them.

A 15-year-old girl was given into temporary custody of the PCCS when her parents were found incapable of her care.

Eight other cases involving offenses of juveniles were dismissed from the court's jurisdiction. Reasons for the dismissal included the child's moving, joining the service or marriage.

Government Agency Reports Marijuana Study Findings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government health agency says while there is no scientific evidence that marijuana smoking leads automatically to hard drugs, serious questions remain about the effects of its chronic use.

The National Institute of Mental Health said in a paper released Tuesday by a House crime committee the question of possible brain damage from chronic use of strong marijuana preparations such as hashish still is unanswered.

And any authoritative conclusions on long-term marijuana effects are premature until present studies are completed, hopefully in two years, the institute said.

The questions and key portions of answers based on three years of NIMH-directed studies: Q. Should marijuana be classified with the dangerous drugs and narcotics

A. Marijuana is not a narcotic and was included in that (federal) statutory category incorrectly. Marijuana is a mild hallucinogen. At our present level of knowledge it should be included in the group of dangerous drugs, along with other hallucinogens, stimulants and sedatives.

Q. Is it meaningful to speak of physical or psychological dependency with respect to marijuana?

A. Physical dependency or true addiction does not occur. Psychological dependency is well known in this country and abroad.

Q. Does marijuana use create an attitude that makes it easier or in some cases inevitable for the user to drift into use of other dangerous drugs or "hard narcotics?"

A. In studies which have been done to attempt to answer this question, a third to a half of all chronic marijuana users will also try amphetamines, barbiturates, and less than 5 per cent will try narcotics, like heroin.

About 85 per cent of all heroin addicts admit prior marijuana smoking. Those who do progress to heroin are usually the most emotionally disturbed group.

Q. Does marijuana use cause any organic brain damage or does it have any toxic effect on the body?

A. We do not know. In some countries of the Middle East and Near East, where cannabis preparations have been a part of the culture, it is believed chronic use of the strong preparations, such as hashish, is associated with psychosis and brain damage in some people.

Wall Street's Woes

In the lush years of the mid-1960s, brokerage houses complained they were unable to keep up with booming business. Now that volume has fallen off, the complaints have taken a different turn.

Rising costs and diminished trading have intensified the profit pinch, brokers say. So they have asked the Securities and Exchange Commission for permission to increase fees charged small investors while reducing rates for big buyers, such as institutions.

SEC study of that plea may take a while, so brokers want immediate authorization to impose a minimum service charge on smaller transactions.

There's no question Wall Street is feeling a pinch. A survey finds that more than half of the securities houses doing public business lost money on their commission trading in 1969. Recently one of the erstwhile leading firms announced plans to close.

But not all of Wall Street's houses are in trouble. And the public finds it hard to understand why the little fellow should be expected to pay extra to help those that are.

Recharge The Batteries

Perhaps being manager of a national wildlife refuge brings out the poet in a man. Or maybe it takes a man with the soul of a poet to do such a job properly.

At any rate, it is a poetic siren song which Charles Darling, manager of the Quivira National Wildlife Refuge in Kansas gave forth recently.

"The mallard drake displays his possessiveness of his female companion and the air is filled with the courtship flight of pintails. The reverberating call of sandhill cranes drifts down as these large birds move leisurely along on the high, warm air currents.

"The eagles are about to leave their wintering areas and head northward. Ten bald eagles, our national bird, and seven golden eagles were recently observed in a day at Quivira Refuge. The small birds are also moving through and the songs of the meadowlark and cardinal are becoming more numerous.

Those who have used their faculties of outrage and indignation to the utmost, and feel a need to recharge their emotional batteries, might find a visit to a wildlife refuge very helpful.

April is Cancer Crusade Month, and the challenge to Americans is twofold: to detect early symptoms. That's the first priority.

Cancer, detected in time, is one of the more curable of the major diseases. Still, more than 100,000 Americans will

That's the reason for the check that goes with the checkup.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Can an individual afford to handle his own investment portfolio in these days of depressed markets, economic imponderables and a rather cool reception from the financially distressed brokerage fraternity?

This is one of the most fundamental issues affecting the multi-billion-dollar securities markets as a whole, and the relatively tiny accounts of the 26 million stockholders who place their faith and funds in American corporations.

Some institutions, mainly mutual funds, have in recent years promoted and publicized the notion that the ordinary small investor of a few thousand dollars cannot hold his own in a market place of professionals.

Little question about it: they do have a point. Small investors caught in the whipsawing of prices as institutions dump stock can testify to the adverse affects, which consist mainly of a sudden diminishment of assets.

The small investor doesn't have the time, the intelligence, the knowledge, the research, the know-how to handle his own account, according to the argument. Best that he give his money to a fund for professional management.

Now one of the largest distributors of funds, Vance, Sanders & Co., offers what it suggests is documented evidence that the ordinary investor cannot afford to handle his portfolio in terms of cost either.

Its promotional literature states: "Anybody who thinks he can save money by supplying his own investment expertise, rather than delegating the job to professional management, might do a little informal cost analysis."

An hour a day, it states, would seem to be a reasonable amount of time to devote to portfolio supervision. Next it calculates that the one hour he takes from the regular eight-hour business day.

This would mean, according to Vance, Sanders reasoning, that 12.5 per cent of a person's working day would be devoted to supervision of the investment program and that, therefore, the true cost would be 12.5 per cent of salary.

For a person with a $10,000 income, therefore, this mutual fund distributor maintains that the cost is $1,250 a year. For a $30,000-a-year worker, the equivalent cost would be $3,750.

The curious thing about this reasoning is that it assumes the time spent in handling the account should be written off as time expended rather than as time invested. Does any self-employed man, such as a salesman, deduct a per hour service fee from his own salary?

And there is the question also of quality. Does the mutual fund, for example, really give this man service superior to that he could provide himself? Is its professional wisdom necessarily superior to his own?

Good questions, and perhaps only a detailed study of the results can prove the case either way. There is plenty of evidence, however, that some ordinary investors are superior, some funds inferior.

The case against the small investor who prefers to deal directly in the market without an intermediary, has not been proved. Great efforts are being made in that direction, however.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

AN ARIZONA booster vows that he came upon a saloon outside Tucson where a dappled horse was established behind the bar dispensing drinks. "Whassa matter?" snarled—or neighed—the horse, noting the booster's astonishment, "never seen a horse tending bar before?" "It isn't that," the booster assured him. "I just never thought that the cow who used to own the joint would sell a gold mine like this!"

A rather brassy vaudeville burst into his booking agent's office to exult, "Have I got a new act for you! It involves me, my wife, and my two beautiful daughters."

"What do you do?" asked the slightly dubious booking agent. "Wait 'til you hear this," bubbled the actor. "First, all four of us take off our clothes. Then we start throwing cream pies in each other's faces. Then, for a finale, we dash up and down aisles smacking the pies on all the bald heads in the audience."

"That's some act," murmured the agent, shaking his head. "What are you going to call yourselves?" "We've got the perfect name," said the actor proudly. "The Aristocrats."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am thirty-five years of age, and healthy and I hesitate very much to discuss this with my doctor. My wife and I have our fifth child and due to the increasing world problems, we believe we have done our share.

I am sure other men would appreciate some discussion of the operation which sterilizes the male. Are there physical changes in this operation as well as psychological effects?

Dear Mr. W.: Not a day passes without a letter that includes the inability to discuss some problem with one's doctor. It is inconceivable to me that patients do not truly appreciate the mature and vital bond that exists between them and their doctors. In your case, do you really believe that a discussion of your problem carries with it any sense of shame? It does not.

Your doctor has undoubtedly, within a lifetime of practice, answered your question many times to others who were free enough to ask it. People deprive themselves of the advantages of their doctor's understanding by such an unrealistic attitude.

I have repeatedly stated in these columns that the information they contain is not my private property, but that which is common knowledge to doctors everywhere. No newspaper or magazine article can possibly replace the value of your own doctor.

As a writer, my aim is to reinforce the relationship between you and your doctor rather than to separate you. If this concept is understood by my readers, then it will be more valuable than the actual answers about the sterilization of the male.

Your decision to consider sterilization is, of course, an individual one and must be the result of combined thinking by you and your wife. When you say you "believe you have done your share" you must certainly have, and it is understandable that some way to limit further growth of your family is being considered.

any psychological effects following this simple but permanent operation. I say permanent, even though there are occasional reports that the tube can be reopened by another operation. A series of new surgical techniques are being tried to make this a reversible operation. Temporary clips are being tried, because too often people regret that they have permanently become infertile.

Occasionally, some people with a delicate psychological balance may become severely depressed by a decision that cannot be changed. It is for this reason that I suggest intensive discussion between your doctor before irreversible surgery is entertained. Psychological guidance and advice may be of extreme value so that you will not punish yourself in the future for an impulsive decision.

Poor speech in a young child should be remedied quickly.

New Left Youth Group

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

A special report put out by Combat, a publication which keeps tabs on the doings of both the New and the Old Left, tells us about the creation of the American Communist Party's new youth group. There's nothing particularly remarkable about the fact that the comrades have decided to establish still another catch-'em-young vehicle, for the Dubois Clubs, which have been designated as a Communist front by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, have been losing their appeal. What is interesting, however, is the Communist approach to the problem of finding a name for the new group. Listen, my children, and beware.

Publicly, as the Combat editors tell us, the youth group has been set up as the Young Workers Liberation League. But it is also to be known as the Young Communist Liberation League. According to Combat reporters who were present at the Sherman House in Chicago in February when the new youth catch-all was being baptized, the delegates endorsed a policy of permitting the clubs in various parts of the U.S. to go under either name, depending on local value judgments regarding "public relations" and recruiting advantages.

Since the Communists have always had a talent for what has been called "Aesopian language," or double-talk, the idea of having a two-name organization for appealing to youth is quite in line with tradition. But the sobering thing is that we always have the glibbies among us who never seem to digest the implications of "Aesopianism." For example, there is little show of anger among us when the North Vietnamese, who have sixty thousand soldiers on Laotian soil and forty thousand more in Cambodia, accuse us, of "imperialism." The harm we did to our foreign policy by accepting Mao Tse-tung as a "Jeffersonian agrarian" in the Nineteen Forties will never be undone.

We are just a bunch of rubes when it comes to accepting the language of "liberation" at face value and a two-name Communist youth group is good for a long run of profitable stands in the sticks.

How different is our mentality when we apply this business of nomenclature to the products of capitalism. We have a "truth-in-packaging" law covering practically everything you buy in a drug store or a supermarket. The label on the package must clearly specify what is inside, both as to quality and quantity. If the number of servings is given, the weight of an individual serving must be supplied, too. It is illegal to speak of "jumbo ounces" or "giant half-quarts."

It is not illegal, however, to call it a "sick-in" when you are really striking. Or to call it "defense" when you carry a gun and go looking for trouble. It is not true that a "rose by any other name would smell as sweet"; we have found ways of rebaptizing the rose to make it smell like devastating jasmine. The Left in particular gets clever by the hour in making semantic adaptations that overpower the senses of the yokels. Back in July of 1969 a small group of "anti-war activists" (J. Edgar Hoover had a different nomenclature for some of them) met in Cleveland to "initiate plans for a massive fall offensive against the Vietnam War culminating with a giant Washington demonstration November 15 for the immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam." This is the way the Militant, a Trotskyite publication, described it. The first thing the Cleveland group did was to substitute the word "moratorium" for the word "strike" when referring to the idea of a great anti-war protest. The new word went down like honey. The Trotskyite Militant knew it would; after all, hadn't it warned the Cleveland "activists" that "the movement must avoid the trap of projecting its actions in a way that would alienate people instead of winning them?"

In social matters, practically everything these days is sold as a "jumbo ounce" or a "giant half-quart." Between two-headed youth groups, and "sick-in" work stoppages, and "forces of liberation" which have only totalitarianism to sell, we are going to be kidded into collapse. Our English teachers in high schools should be warning their charges about the "Aesopian" use of language. But the teachers seem to be on a "jumbo ounce" jag like the rest of us. A "truth-in-packaging" law for the intellect? Forget it, we haven't the common sense to devise one.

ON THE Q T—A new type quiet-flying Q-Star plane makes a low pass along the coast near San Francisco during flight test. Developed by Lockheed, the Q-Star has its engine mounted behind the pilot and a 10-foot shaft extends from the engine over the cockpit to a pylon which rises from the plane's nose to support a slow-turning wooden propeller.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals for a mere man is supermarket shopping. It is for him more a test of endurance and survival than of character.

For if there is one place in the modern world where woman doesn't have to struggle to obtain equal rights, it is in the average supermarket. There, in the unending war between the sexes, she has every advantage; man is at every disadvantage.

A grown man is as out of place alone in a supermarket as a 3-year-old child at a picnic of banshees and harpies. There is something about his presence there that arouses the killer instincts in veteran women shoppers.

They take out on him all the pent-up wrath they have felt in centuries of submission to male domination.

All a guy making his first trip through a supermarket has to do is to innocently ask a lady where the cans of dog food are. A look of unholy glee crosses her face as she deliberately misdirects him to the frozen vegetables department.

Then by whispered word and eyebrow gestures the ladies pass the news about him along: "This guy's a greenhorn. Let's give him the works."

From that moment on his progress through the store is a march of debacle.

If he tries to buy a steak, four ladies surround the fresh meat counter shoulder to shoulder and keep him away for 15 minutes while they chat about household problems.

If he starts to ask a 60-year-old biddy old enough to be his mother just where the store hides the tomato juice, she is likely to reply in stentorian tones:

"Are you trying to get fresh with me, young man? I've a good mind to slap your face. It's getting so a girl isn't safe anywhere anymore."

If he heads for the nearest checkout counter, half a dozen women elbow him out of the way. They show him no mercy, they yield him no quarter.

But their chief educational weapon in reducing him to a quivering jelly is the wire pushcart. After he has gone less than 50 feet into the store he feels like a squirrel on a thruway during the rush hour.

They hold to the exact center of the roadway and crash into him head on, sending half of his own groceries flying. They lie in wait and ambush him on the turns. They smash into him from behind every time he pauses to select an item.

"I spent two years in the infantry, but I never saw a battlefield quite like that," said one man, recalling his first visit to a supermarket. "I kept looking for a foxhole to dive into, but there wasn't any. I would have surrendered, but the women shoppers in that store didn't seem to want to take any male prisoners alive."

A man is fairly safe if he accompanies his wife to the supermarket—the other ladies recognize he has been captured—but any fellow who has to go it alone ought to get a combat medal for each trip he makes. And a government disability pension if he lasts a full year.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Can an individual afford to handle his own investment portfolio in these days of depressed markets, economic imponderables and a rather cool reception from the financially distressed brokerage fraternity?

This is one of the most fundamental issues affecting the multi-billion-dollar securities markets as a whole, and the relatively tiny accounts of the 26 million stockholders who place their faith and funds in American corporations.

Some institutions, mainly mutual funds, have in recent years promoted and publicized the notion that the ordinary small investor of a few thousand dollars cannot hold his own in a market place of professionals.

Little question about it: they do have a point. Small investors caught in the whipsawing of prices as institutions dump stock can testify to the adverse affects, which consist mainly of a sudden diminishment of assets.

The small investor doesn't have the time, the intelligence, the knowledge, the research, the know-how to handle his own account, according to the argument. Best that he give his money to a fund for professional management.

Now one of the largest distributors of funds, Vance, Sanders & Co., offers what it suggests is documented evidence that the ordinary investor cannot afford to handle his portfolio in terms of cost either.

Its promotional literature states: "Anybody who thinks he can save money by supplying his own investment expertise, rather than delegating the job to professional management, might do a little informal cost analysis."

An hour a day, it states, would seem to be a reasonable amount of time to devote to portfolio supervision. Next it calculates that the one hour be taken from the regular eight-hour business day.

This would mean, according to Vance, Sanders reasoning, that 12.5 per cent of a person's working day would be devoted to supervision of the investment program and that, therefore, the true cost would be 12.5 per cent of salary.

For a person with a $10,000 income, therefore, this mutual fund distributor maintains that the cost is $1,250 a year. For a $30,000-a-year worker, the equivalent cost would be $3,750.

The curious thing about this reasoning is that it assumes the time spent in handling the account should be written off as time expended rather than as time invested. Does any self-employed man, such as a salesman, deduct a per hour service fee from his own salary?

And there is the question also of quality. Does the mutual fund, for example, really give this man service superior to that he could provide himself? Is its professional wisdom necessarily superior to his own?

Good questions, and perhaps only a detailed study of the results can prove the case either way. There is plenty of evidence, however, that some ordinary investors are superior, some funds inferior.

The case against the small investor who prefers to deal directly in the market without an intermediary, has not been proved. Great efforts are being made in that direction, however.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

AN ARIZONA booster vows that he came upon a saloon outside Tucson where a dappled horse was established behind the bar dispensing drinks. "Whassa matter?" snarled—or neighed—the horse, noting the booster's astonishment, "never seen a horse tending bar before?" "It isn't that," the booster assured him. "I just never thought that the cow who used to own the joint would sell a gold mine like this!"

A rather brassy vaudeville burst into his booking agent's office to exult, "Have I got a new act for you! It involves me, my wife, and my two beautiful daughters."

"What do you do?" asked the slightly dubious booking agent. "Wait 'til you hear this," bubbled the actor. "First, all four of us take off our clothes. Then we start throwing cream pies in each other's faces. Then, for a finale, we dash up and down aisles smacking the pies on all the bald heads in the audience."

"That's some act," murmured the agent, shaking his head. "What are you going to call yourselves?" "We've got the perfect name," said the actor proudly. "The Aristocrats."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am thirty-five years of age, and healthy and I hesitate very much to discuss this with my doctor. My wife and I have our fifth child and due to the increasing world problems, we believe we have done our share. I am sure other men would appreciate some discussion of the operation which sterilizes the male. Are there physical changes in this operation as well as psychological effects?

Mr. R. W., Maine
Dear Mr. W.: Not a day passes without a letter that includes the inability to discuss some problem with one's doctor. It is inconceivable to me that patients do not truly appreciate the mature and vital bond that exists between them and their doctors. In your case, do you really believe that a discussion of your problem carries with it any sense of shame? It does not.

Your doctor has undoubtedly, within a lifetime of practice, answered your question many times to others who were free enough to ask it. People deprive themselves of the advantages of their doctor's understanding by such an unrealistic attitude.

I have repeatedly stated in these columns that the information they contain is not my private property, but that which is common knowledge to doctors everywhere. No newspaper or magazine article can possibly replace the value of your own doctor.

As a writer, my aim is to reinforce the relationship between you and your doctor rather than to separate you. If this concept is understood by my readers, then it will be more valuable than the actual answers about the sterilization of the male.

Your decision to consider sterilization is, of course, an individual one and must be the result of combined thinking by you and your wife. When you say you "believe you have done your share" you most certainly have, and it is understandable that some way to limit further growth of your family is being considered.

An operation, Vasectomy, is one by which a tiny tube that carries the male sperm is either cut, tied or closed. This tube, the vas deferens, is altered by a simple operation usually performed under local anesthesia. Shortly after the operation, sperm no longer can flow through the tube, and pregnancy is thereby avoided. The operation is successful in almost all cases when it is well performed with one of the many modern techniques. You wisely ask if there are

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

A special report put out by Combat, a publication which keeps tabs on the doings of both the New and the Old Left, tells us about the creation of the American Communist Party's new youth group. There's nothing particularly remarkable about the fact that the comrades have decided to establish still another catch-'em-young vehicle, for the Dubois Clubs, which have been designated as a Communist front by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, have been losing their appeal. What is interesting, however, is the Communist approach to the problem of finding a name for the new group. Listen, my children, and beware.

Publicly, as the Combat editors tell us, the youth group has been set up as the Young Workers Liberation League. But it is also to be known as the Young Communist Liberation League. According to Combat reporters who were present at the Sherman House in Chicago in February when the new youth catch-all was being baptized, the delegates endorsed a policy of permitting the clubs in various parts of the U.S. to go under either name, depending on local value judgments regarding "public relations" and recruiting advantages.

Since the Communists have always had a talent for what has been called "Aesopian language," or double-talk, the idea of having a two-name organization for appealing to youth is quite in line with tradition. But the sobering thing is that we always have the gullibles among us who never seem to digest the implications of "Aesopianism." For example, there is little show of anger among us when the North Vietnamese, who have sixty thousand soldiers on Laotian soil and forty thousand more in Cambodia, accuse us of "imperialism." The harm we did to our foreign policy by accepting Mao Tse-tung as a "Jeffersonian agrarian" in the Nineteen Forties will never be undone.

We are just a bunch of rubes when it comes to accepting the language of "liberation" at face value and a two-name Communist youth group is good for a long run of profitable stands in the sticks.

How different is our mentality when we apply this business of nomenclature to the products of capitalism. We have a "truth-in-packaging" law covering practically everything you buy in a drug store or a supermarket. The label on the package must clearly specify what is inside, both as to quality and quantity. If the number of servings is given, the weight of an individual serving must be supplied, too. It is illegal to speak of "jumbo ounces" or "giant half-quarts."

It is not illegal, however, to call it a "sick-in" when you are really striking. Or to call it "defense" when you carry a gun and go looking for trouble. It is not true that a "rose by any other name would smell as sweet"; we have found ways of rebaptizing the rose to make it smell like devastating jasmine. The Left in particular gets clever by the hour in making semantic adaptations that overpower the senses of the yokels. Back in July of 1969 a small group of "anti-war activists" (J. Edgar Hoover had a different nomenclature for some of them) met in Cleveland to "initiate plans for a massive fall offensive against the Vietnam War culminating with a giant Washington demonstration November 15 for the immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam." This is the way the Militant, a Trotskyite publication, described it. The first thing the Cleveland group did was to substitute the word "militarium" for the word "strike" when referring to the idea of a great anti-war protest. The new word went down like honey. The Trotskyite Militant knew it would; after all, hadn't it warned the Cleveland "activists" that "the movement must avoid the trap of projecting its actions in a way that would alienate people instead of winning them?"

In social matters, practically everything these days is sold as a "jumbo ounce" or a "giant half-quart." Between two-headed youth groups, and "stick-in" work stoppages, and "forces of liberation" which have only totalitarianism to sell, we are going to be kidded into collapse. Our English teachers in high schools should be warning their charges about the "Aesopian" use of language. But the teachers seem to be on a "jumbo ounce" jag like the rest of us. A "truth-in-packaging" law for the intellect? Forget it, we haven't the common sense to devise one.

ON THE Q—A new type quiet-flying Q-Star plane makes a low pass along the coast near San Francisco during flight test. Developed by Lockheed, the Q-Star has its engine mounted behind the pilot and a 10-foot shaft extends from the engine over the cockpit to a pylon which rises from the plane's nose to support a slow-turning wooden propeller.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals for a mere man is supermarket shopping. It is for him more a test of endurance and survival than of character.

For if there is one place in the modern world where woman doesn't have to struggle to obtain equal rights, it is in the average supermarket. There, in the unending war between the sexes, she has every advantage; man is at every disadvantage.

A grown man is as out of place alone in a supermarket as a 3-year-old child at a picnic of banshees and harpies. There is something about his presence there that arouses the killer instincts in veteran women shoppers.

They take out on him all the pent-up wrath they have felt in centuries of submission to male domination.

All a guy making his first trip through a supermarket has to do is to innocently ask a lady where the cans of dog food are. A look of unholy glee crosses her face as she deliberately misdirects him to the frozen vegetables department.

Then by whispered word and eyebrow gestures the ladies pass the news about him along: "This guy's a greenhorn. Let's give him the works."

From that moment on his progress through the store is a march of debacle.

If he tries to buy a steak, four ladies surround the fresh meat counter shoulder to shoulder and keep him away for 15 minutes while they chat about household problems.

If he starts to ask a 60-year-old biddy old enough to be his mother just where the store hides the tomato juice, she is likely to reply in stentorian tones:

"Are you trying to get fresh with me, young man? I've a good mind to slap your face. It's getting so a girl isn't safe anywhere anymore."

If he heads for the nearest checkout counter, half a dozen women elbow him out of the way. They show him no mercy, they yield him no quarter.

But their chief educational weapon in reducing him to a quivering jelly is the wire pushcart. After he has gone less than 50 feet into the store he feels like a squirrel on a thruway during the rush hour.

They hold to the exact center of the roadway and crash into him head on, sending half of his own groceries flying. They lie in wait and ambush him on the turns. They smash into him from behind every time he pauses to select an item.

"I spent two years in the infantry, but I never saw a battlefield quite like that," said one man, recalling his first visit to a supermarket. "I kept looking for a foxhole to dive into, but there wasn't any. I would have surrendered, but the women shoppers in that store didn't seem to want to take any male prisoners alive."

A man is fairly safe if he accompanies his wife to the supermarket—the other ladies recognize he has been captured—but any fellow who has to go it alone ought to get a combat medal for each trip he makes. And a government disability pension if he lasts a full year.

Cook's Vote Told Carswell His Nomination Was Dead

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — When Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., cast a "nay" vote, Judge G. Harold Carswell and the friends and relatives who surrounded him knew his Supreme Court chance was dead.

Cook had voted for the nomination in the Judiciary Committee and had declared that the judge was being traduced by his critics, a family member said.

"He told the judge once, 'Good God, Harold, they are ruining you by innuendo,'" said Carswell's son-in-law, Fenton Langston. "And then he comes back with some trumped up tale about why he changed his vote."

The 50-year-old judge followed the vote on two television sets, tuned to different networks, along with several dozen friends and relatives in his big Lake Jackson home.

When the vote was announced, Carswell walked away from the television and sat down on a couch.

"It's a relief . . . I'm glad it's over," he was quoted as saying by Tallahassee Postmaster Peyton Yon, a close family friend.

Then the judge and his wife, Virginia, went into a bedroom to talk privately.

A friend said the vote did not catch the Carswell home by surprise. A call expressing gloom had come from the White House in midmorning.

Afterwards, calls came from President Nixon, Florida Sen. Ed Gurney and Atty. Gen. John Mitchell.

Langston, who lives next door to Carswell and sees him most mornings at breakfast, said the judge is "a family-type person and he's very pleased he won't have to leave his home."

Mrs. Carswell took the news calmly, but during the debate on the nomination "she just couldn't believe people could fabricate allegations from nothing as they did," Langston added.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

Mrs. Frank Plescia, 240 Edwards Road, will read the pre-school story hour on April 17. Children who have attended regularly enjoy Mrs. Plescia, as she has been the storyteller at other times.

Mrs. Plescia's presentation will bring to an end the present series of Friday pre-school story hours. Watch this column for announcement of the next series, which will probably be held in conjunction with the summer reading program for boys and girls of school age.

"Alexander and the Wind-Up Mouse" by Leo Lionni. Alexander is an endearing creature, simply drawn. He meets Willy, a toy mouse, who seems to lead an exotic life. Willie spins in circles and sleeps on a soft white pillow between a doll and a teddy bear. Alexander wants to become a windup mouse, but learns, just in time, that it is better to be alive. Mr. Lionni's pictures are stunning in their color and form. Picture book.

"Brown Cow Farm" by Dahlov Ipcar. Strangeiv, every creature on the farm is brown. This is a classic counting book to delight the eager learner. Not only can he count up to ten brown cows, but also twenty little puppies, thirty soft furry kittens. By the time he has reached one hundred wild goslings, he should be almost ready for sets. Picture book replacement title.

"Ollie's Polliwogs" by Anne and Harlow Rockwell. In addition to its wonderfully clear story of the development of a frog, this book has a great feature. Ollie, who finds his frog eggs, does so while out walking with his father. It is his father who helps him set up his aquarium, his father who shares the wonder of the experiment. Oh, Mother is there, all right, but for once she doesn't push Father off the page. From the discovery of the eggs to the freeing of his young frogs, Ollie's adventures are exciting. Pictures are almost cartoon-like. Good information for school and home use. Grades 4-6.

"Penguin's Way" by Johanna Johnston, illustrated by Leonard Weisgard. What a strange story is the one about the penguins. They summer in their secret sea, growing fat and slick. Then, as winter approaches, they swim to the cold lonely islands at the South Pole. There they mate and perform their unusual — to us — ritual of hatching their young. Through the bitterest storms, the fathers keep the eggs warm, holding them on their feet. Meanwhile, the mothers are off swimming and eating again. All this is charmingly told and shown in "Penguin's Way." Suitable for all children.

Paul W. Brown Feels Gubernatorial Race Victory Near

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The role of a partisan politician hasn't come easy for ex-judge Paul W. Brown, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Brown was plucked from the Ohio Supreme Court bench to become attorney general when William B. Saxbe was elected to the U.S. Senate.

His mentor was Gov. James A. Rhodes, the man who made the appointment. Brown now admits that Rhodes was grooming him as his successor.

But the 55-year-old Brown also admits that Rhodes' ardor cooled. "There was a point at which my progress as a candidate was not as rapid as some had hoped," Brown says.

"I think this was the result," he explained, "of the fact I had been a judge and I talked like a judge. People expected me to talk like a candidate for governor."

Rhodes, currently busy in his own campaign for the Senate nomination, contends he's neutral in the governor's race. Brown is hoping the governor may change his mind.

"I think that Mr. Rhodes could make me a winner," he told a Toledo newsman. "If Rhodes was to indicate I was his choice, I'd be a sure winner."

But even without the Rhodes' endorsement, Brown is almost cockily confident. "If he chose one of the others," he said, "they might come a little closer to beating me."

Brown, who has been attorney general since January, 1969, has had his troubles in the partisan political arena.

Although he was elected twice to the then Seventh District Court of Appeals and twice to the Supreme Court, he found partisan politics different.

He's uneasy with the news media and he has had his troubles coming across effectively on television. His judicial temperament boils easily.

Despite his political inexperience, Brown finds himself a leading contender for the nomination. He feels he's ahead of state Auditor Roger Cloud, who he considers his main opposition.

Brown is blessed with one of Ohio's better political names, and he knows it. His campaign material emphasizes the name. It is also identical to that of a well-known Ohio football coach, a matter the Brown advertising people haven't overlooked.

Brown has a distinguished

World War II record. He was captured by the Germans in the African campaign but escaped a prisoner of war camp and fought with Italian guerrillas until he made his way back to American lines.

He won the Silver Star for his actions. And he carries a piece of shrapnel in his left leg as a remembrance of the war. He was discharged from the Army as a major in 1945. In 1942, he married in England an American Army nurse he met in Ireland.

Helen Page Brown has been campaigning, too. She contends she hasn't had such fun since she was a cheerleader in Newport, Mass.

The oldest of their seven children, Susan, 24, is a junior law school student at Ohio State, her father's alma mater.

The other children are Mrs. Julie Bonasera, 23; Mrs. Barbara Randall, 22; Mary, 19, Jeff, 16, and Danny Brown, 9.

Brown was born in Cleveland but attended primary and secondary schools in Youngstown. He began law practice in Youngstown in 1939.

When he first became attorney general, he down-played the office's role in the fight against crime—an image his predecessor Saxbe had carefully nurtured through two campaigns.

But Brown's viewpoint has changed. He contends his trips into Ohio's 88 counties have convinced him crime is a major campaign issue.

The public, Brown believes, is particularly disturbed about the widespread use of drugs among youth.

Brown, it might be said, backed into the drug issue. He was assigned to do a study on drugs by the governor, at the time Rhodes was still pushing Brown's candidacy.

The attorney general's job was thorough. He added three youthful hippie types to his staff and put them in the field talking to student users and making buys of marijuana and narcotics.

The findings were put together in a report that went to the legislature and the governor. The omnibus drug bill now pending in the 108th General Assembly resulted.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWERY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Increasingly, syndicated television is changing its image from that of a "bicycle service" offering fourth reruns of network cast-offs.

Many advertisers, including some of the biggest, now are producing first-run programs for syndication directly to stations across the country.

They see it as a means of reaching the audience they desire at rates lower than those offered by the networks.

A common practice among advertisers is to produce the show and offer it free to the stations in return for three commercial minutes. The stations can make a profit by selling another three minutes to local sponsors.

"A great advantage," said one producer, "is that off the networks you only have two ratings a year rather than the weekly ratings. You're not living and dying by the old ratings game." Rating services sample local stations' audiences twice yearly.

First-run syndication is a $30 million a year business of up to 15 hours a week of game, talk and variety shows, which makes it an effective fourth network.

The show business weekly Variety calls it "the bicycle network," after the old practice of bicycling the prints around.

Among the top syndicated programs are "The Mike Douglas Show," "The David Frost Show," "To Tell the Truth," "Girl Talk," "Beat The Clock," "He Said, She Said," "The Galloping Gourmet," and "The Movie Game."

The syndicators and advertisers also have their eyes on cable television, which has been authorized by the Federal Communications Commission to originate its own programming and to sell advertising.

The syndicators could receive a shot in the arm from a proposal under consideration by the FCC to limit the networks to three hours of non-news programming between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m. each night.

The proposal is designed to stimulate first-run syndication.

Another means of getting programs to the stations, other than mailing out tapes, is through the Hughes Television Network.

Since Howard Hughes took over the old Sports Television Network, its programming has become diversified.

One such program is a series of specials produced by Life magazine, the first of which, "Thirty Days to Survival," was a critical success.

Its second show, "Cowboy," was shown nationally by Hughes Wednesday night. It was a vivid portrayal of the lonely life of the open range.

At the National Association of Broadcasters convention, which concluded Wednesday in Chicago, dozens of syndicators were busy promoting their shows to the broadcasters. It was also quite evident that former network shows are still big business, as stations were signed up for canceled shows.

Paul W. Brown Feels Gubernatorial Race Victory Near

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The role of a partisan politician hasn't come easy for ex-judge Paul W. Brown, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Brown was plucked from the Ohio Supreme Court bench to become attorney general when William B. Saxbe was elected to the U.S. Senate.

His mentor was Gov. James A. Rhodes, the man who made the appointment. Brown now admits that Rhodes was grooming him as his successor.

But the 55-year-old Brown also admits that Rhodes' ardor cooled. "There was a point at which my progress as a candidate was not as rapid as some had hoped," Brown says.

"I think this was the result," he explained, "of the fact I had been a judge and I talked like a judge. People expected me to talk like a candidate for governor."

Rhodes, currently busy in his own campaign for the Senate nomination, contends he's neutral in the governor's race. Brown is hoping the governor may change his mind.

"I think that Mr. Rhodes could make me a winner," he told a Toledo newsman. "If Rhodes was to indicate I was his choice, I'd be a sure winner."

But even without the Rhodes' endorsement, Brown is almost cockily confident. "If he chose one of the others," he said, "they might come a little closer to beating me."

Brown, who has been attorney general since January, 1969, has had his troubles in the partisan political arena.

Although he was elected twice to the then Seventh District Court of Appeals and twice to the Supreme Court, he found partisan politics different.

He's uneasy with the news media and he has had his troubles coming across effectively on television. His judicial temperament boils easily.

Despite his political inexperience, Brown finds himself a leading contender for the nomination. He feels he's ahead of state Auditor Roger Cloud, who he considers his main opposition.

Brown is blessed with one of Ohio's better political names, and he knows it. His campaign material emphasizes the name.

It is also identical to that of a well-known Ohio football coach, a matter the Brown advertising people haven't overlooked.

Brown has a distinguished

World War II record. He was captured by the Germans in the African campaign but escaped a prisoner of war camp and fought with Italian guerrillas until he made his way back to American lines.

He won the Silver Star for his actions. And he carries a piece of shrapnel in his left leg as a remembrance of the war.

He was discharged from the Army as a major in 1945. In 1942, he married in England an American Army nurse he met in Ireland.

Helen Page Brown has been campaigning, too. She contends she hasn't had such fun since she was a cheerleader in Newport, Mass.

The oldest of their seven children, Susan, 24, is a junior law school student at Ohio State, her father's alma mater.

The other children are Mrs. Julie Bonasera, 23; Mrs. Barbara Randall, 22; Mary, 19, Jeff, 16, and Danny Brown, 9.

Brown was born in Cleveland but attended primary and secondary schools in Youngstown. He began law practice in Youngstown in 1939.

When he first became attorney general, he downplayed the office's role in the fight against crime—an image his predecessor Saxbe had carefully nurtured through two campaigns.

But Brown's viewpoint has changed. He contends his trips into Ohio's 88 counties have convinced him crime is a major campaign issue.

The public, Brown believes, is particularly disturbed about the widespread use of drugs among youth.

Brown, it might be said, backed into the drug issue. He was assigned to do a study on drugs by the governor, at the time Rhodes was still pushing Brown's candidacy.

The attorney general's job was thorough. He added three youthful hippie types to his staff and put them in the field talking to student users and making buys of marijuana and narcotics.

The findings were put together in a report that went to the legislature and the governor. The omnibus drug bill now pending in the 108th General Assembly resulted.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWERY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Increasingly, syndicated television is changing its image from that of a "bicycle service" offering fourth reruns of network cast-offs.

Many advertisers, including some of the biggest, now are producing first-run programs for syndication directly to stations across the country.

They see it as a means of reaching the audience they desire at rates lower than those offered by the networks.

A common practice among advertisers is to produce the show and offer it free to the stations in return for three commercial minutes. The stations can make a profit by selling another three minutes to local sponsors.

"A great advantage," said one producer, "is that off the networks you only have two ratings a year rather than the weekly ratings. You're not living and dying by the old ratings game." Rating services sample local stations' audiences twice yearly.

First-run syndication is a $30 million a year business of up to 15 hours a week of game, talk and variety shows, which makes it an effective fourth network.

The show business weekly Variety calls it "the bicycle network," after the old practice of bicycling the prints around.

Among the top syndicated programs are "The Mike Douglas Show," "The David Frost Show," "To Tell the Truth," "Girl Talk," "Beat the Clock," "He Said, She Said," "The Galloping Gourmet," and "The Movie Game."

At the National Association of Broadcasters convention, which concluded Wednesday in Chicago, dozens of syndicators were busy promoting their shows to the broadcasters. It was also quite evident that former network shows are still big business, as stations were signed up for canceled shows.

Lender Of Car Is Responsible Too!

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago, without my parents' permission, I let one of my friends drive our big car up and down our driveway. While he was doing it, my mom drove up in her little car. My friend panicked and drove the car backwards and it hit a tree. The car now has a dent which one of us will have to pay for.

Even though it was both of our faults (me for letting him drive it, and him for hitting the tree), my mom is holding me responsible for the whole thing. She is making me pay for the damage out of my allowance and has taken away a lot of my privileges. Do you think this is fair? My friend hardly got into trouble.

My mom doesn't even trust me or understand me anymore. I can't even talk to her about it.

What can I do so she will be good friends with me again and I can get my privileges back?

CAN'T UNDERSTAND PARENTS

DEAR CAN'T: You allowed your friend to drive the family car without permission on purpose. He hit a tree accidentally. The lion's share of the "blame" was yours. Start now to build "good will" with your mother. When you have shown more mature judgment by your behavior, your mother will restore your privileges. As for being "friends" with you again, your mother is probably your best friend right now. She is teaching you how to be a more responsible person.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me explain to some American women why American men marry orientals. I am an oriental who married an American service man. We met while he was serving his country in the Orient.

I am heartsick when I hear American women say that the only reason an American man marries an oriental woman is because he wants a lifetime servant.

I have heard equally insulting remarks, such as "An oriental woman will bathe a man, massage him, wash his feet—she'll do anything and everything a man wants her to do. No American woman will sink that low."

This is not true, Abby. The oriental woman is taught from childhood to care for a man lovingly. She remains quiet and uncomplaining, treating him always with respect and consideration. She thinks first of his happiness and comfort because she loves and appreciates him.

It is a fact that a contented man is never unkind to the woman who provides him with peace and happiness.

Abby, if you can express this better than I, please do so.

VERY truly yours,
ORIENTAL WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You have said it well enough.

DEAR ABBY: There is a situation that "bugs" me no end. I am an avid TV fan and watch it from 7 a. m. until midnight almost every day, and an increasing number of actors appearing on some of my favorite programs are letting their hair grow longer and longer. I have watched some formerly good-looking actors transformed into something rather sickening. I am more than tempted to cease support of these programs and the products that sponsor them.

I wonder how many other viewers feel as I do about it? Some of these men look like aging Buster Browns or women who need shaves!

I have accepted the style changes in clothes, but this long hair trend makes me ill. What can be done?

'Nader's Raiders' Rip FDA Laxness Regulating Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has permitted itself to be shackled to a chemical and genetic time bomb by the food industry, a report by investigators working under consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Wednesday.

"Nader's Raiders" charged the agency with wasting time on senseless campaigns of harassment while the food industry develops techniques "for manipulating the content of food products as dictated by corporate greed and irresponsibility."

"Until the FDA recognizes the food business for the profit-making giant that it is, this public agency will continue to be the vessel of an industry which through callousness, ignorance, or greed routinely mauls the public interest," the report said.

The investigators, the so-called Nader's Raiders, are young lawyers and law students recruited by Nader to look into areas of alleged consumer abuse.

The report, devoted almost entirely to what it termed the "total collapse" of the FDA's food regulation activities, said the agency had in effect reversed procedures for insuring the safety of food additives.

Instead of following the law requiring additives be safe, the report said the FDA accepts of ten insubstantial industry evidence, allows the chemicals' use and then challenges critical researchers to prove the ingredients unsafe.

In addition, the report said, the agency allows the industry to mask the additives' presence by freeing producers from the responsibility of listing ingredients on labels.

Further, the Nader investigators alleged, the FDA ranks sanitation inspection among its lowest priority jobs, taking the position food processors will maintain clean conditions voluntarily.

Yet the agency's own figures show in fiscal 1969 only 39 percent of the establishments inspected were in compliance with sanitary regulations, the report went on.

While this was going on, the FDA continued what the report said was senseless harassment against the late psychoanalyst Wilhelm Reich. The agency destroyed devices Reich claimed could improve health and burned his highly regarded books, the report said, when the time could have been spent on more important tasks.

"Nader's Raiders" charged the agency with wasting time on senseless campaigns of harassment while the food industry develops techniques "for manipulating the content of food products as dictated by corporate greed and irresponsibility."

"Until the FDA recognizes the food business for the profit-making giant that it is, this public agency will continue to be the vessel of an industry which through callousness, ignorance, or greed routinely mauls the public interest," the report said.

The investigators, the so-called Nader's Raiders, are young lawyers and law students recruited by Nader to look into areas of alleged consumer abuse.

The report, devoted almost entirely to what it termed the "total collapse" of the FDA's food regulation activities, said the agency had in effect reversed procedures for insuring the safety of food additives.

Instead of following the law requiring additives be safe, the report said the FDA accepts of ten insubstantial industry evidence, allows the chemicals' use and then challenges critical researchers to prove the ingredients unsafe.

In addition, the report said, the agency allows the industry to mask the additives' presence by freeing producers from the responsibility of listing ingredients on labels.

Further, the Nader investigators alleged, the FDA ranks sanitation inspection among its lowest priority jobs, taking the position food processors will maintain clean conditions voluntarily.

Yet the agency's own figures show in fiscal 1969 only 39 percent of the establishments inspected were in compliance with sanitary regulations, the report went on.

While this was going on, the FDA continued what the report said was senseless harassment against the late psychoanalyst Wilhelm Reich. The agency destroyed devices Reich claimed could improve health and burned his highly regarded books, the report said, when the time could have been spent on more important tasks.

MELBOURNE (AP) — A 21-year-old Australian who went hunting Tuesday fainted when he encountered a posse of policemen instead of a warren of rabbits.

NFO To Endorse Sweeney For Office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The National Farmers Organization is expected to endorse Democrat Robert E. Sweeney, 45, of Bay Village for governor at a news conference here Thursday, sources said.

Back - Stage Maneuvers Failed To Save Carswell Bid

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly after noon Wednesday Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin stepped off the Senate floor, picked up a cloakroom telephone and called the White House.

"It's hopeless," he told Kenneth Belieu, an aide in the congressional liaison office.

The roll call vote on Supreme Court nominee G. Harrold Carswell was still 30 minutes away.

But there was no need to rush the word to President Nixon that his Senate leaders now said the cause was doomed.

He apparently already knew. And there was no need to tell the leaders of those who opposed the President's second nominee from the South.

They, too, already knew. They had for days.

But anxious moments lay ahead, due in part to a last-minute White House trick that backfired and a senator who tarried to chat with some Frenchmen. For Griffin and other administration leaders there had been increasing doubt since the Senate rejected a motion Monday to send the embattled nomination back to the Judiciary Committee.

That vote was 52 to 44. On the surface, a solid vote of confidence. But to those in the Senate who knew, it was a fragile moment of reprieve.

There still seemed a chance to pull out a 49-47 victory, said

Griffin, until sometime after 9 o'clock Tuesday night.

Chief White House lobbyist William Timmons called Griffin at home to say word had come through Illinois Republican circles that Sen. Charles H. Percy would, as feared, be in the opposition camp.

"I knew then that the very best we could hope for was a tie," said Griffin.

The hope then rested chiefly with three Republicans—Winston Prouty of Vermont, Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky. But Cook was the key.

Although Griffin declined to go into specifics, other sources on both sides said this was the situation:

The independent, but influential Mrs. Smith was believed to be truly undecided, torn between "wanting to be a good Republican"—as she confided to one friend—and being genuinely opposed to Carswell.

Prouty, facing a stiff re-election battle against a liberal Democrat who has made an issue of Carswell, was agreeable to go either way just as long as he wasn't the swing vote.

"Cook was the kicker. He came early in the alphabet," said one source in the opposition camp. Besides, this source added, they only needed Cook and considered Mrs. Smith and Prouty as insurance.

The 44-year-old freshman had led the administration's unsuccessful fight for Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. last fall. He voted for Carswell in the Judiciary Committee and signed a letter earlier this week in which a committee majority urged the Senate not to send the nomination back to committee.

He even voted against recommitment, declaring that it was ducking the issue to do otherwise.

But he was known to be troubled by charges of racism and mediocrity against the nominee and he was being careful to tell no one—or at least no one who was talking—what he would do.

Griffin was on the floor listening to the final minutes of the last three hours of debate when Howard Baker of Tennessee found him to say that Cook, too, was lost.

"That was when I called the White House," said Griffin.

The White House, however, apparently already knew although there are conflicting versions as to how and when they found out and no explanation of why Griffin was not told.

Cook said he did not reach an unchangeable decision until Tuesday afternoon while driving back from a White House ceremony at which President Nixon awarded 21 posthumous Medals of Honor.

"This may sound corny to you," said Cook, "but I thought to myself that if we demand this degree of excellence from 21 young men who never really got a chance to live then, by George, we ought to demand it of someone we're putting on the Supreme Court."

Cook said he called Presidential counselor Bryce Harlow Wednesday morning to tell him.

Cook said he also called Mrs. Smith Wednesday morning to tell her what he was going to do.

Cook said he didn't ask her how she was going to vote and she didn't say.

But his call to her prompted anxious moment No. 1 for the opposition.

They felt the downcast veteran of 21 years in the Senate might interpret the call as pressure, something she resents. And it also appeared that a move by Mrs. Smith might shake the Cook commitment at the last minute.

Anxious moment No. 2 came soon after when word began to circulate that Harlow had called Cook and Republican Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania and told them that Mrs. Smith had decided to vote for Carswell.

An alarmed Cook in turn called Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, the Senate's only Negro and the leader of Republican opponents to Carswell.

Brooke immediately checked the White House, verified the fact a ruse had been attempted and set out to find Mrs. Smith.

He caught up to her in the Senate dining room just nine minutes before the vote started.

Mrs. Smith was unavailable for comment on why she voted as she did. But a source close to her said the White House use of her name was apparently a factor.

Opinion in the opposition camp was divided on just when they believed the struggle, that most said looked hopeless on Easter weekend, appeared to be won.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., regarded by his staff as a careful head counter, predicted a victory for the first time Tuesday night and hit it right on the nose—51 to 45.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said he was uncertain until the vote began. He said there was even a plan to try and block Vice President Spiro T. Agnew from casting a tie breaker if the issue had come to that.

Brooke said he was certain of victory "30 minutes after Monday's vote."

But he also conceded that he had anxious moment No. 3 shortly after the voting started.

"I was thinking of Cook," he said. "I felt pretty sure we had him. But when Cannon didn't answer his name I nearly died."

Democrat Howard Cannon of Nevada had been under home-state pressure where he said—there had been indications he would face no re-election opposition if he voted for Carswell.

Brooke said he knew this but also had counted Cannon as solidly against Carswell.

"I was talking to a delegation of seven French aviation people when the buzzer rang," said Cannon.

"I come so early in the alphabet there's usually no way I can get to the floor in time to answer my name on the first round."

A SURE SIGN that winter is over is this scene near Onawa, Iowa — thousands of geese on their annual way to Canada.

Serious Labor Disputes Continue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although Congress has acted to avert a nationwide railroad shutdown Saturday, serious labor disputes continued today in the air travel, trucking and newspaper industries.

Congress approved Wednesday a bill requested by President Nixon to impose a nationwide railroad contract that was negotiated last December, but rejected by one small union.

The bill imposes the contract for the rest of 1970 to avoid a shutdown, which railroads had threatened in the event of any strike action Saturday when a congressional strike ban ends.

Both houses passed the bill quickly and overwhelmingly despite a warning by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., that the legislation might be unconstitutional and could fail to prevent wildcat strikes.

The Senate also approved a bill boosting salaries of postal workers and most other federal employees 6 per cent. The $2.5 billion measure survived an effort to limit the raises to postal workers and the military.

The legislation was developed in collective bargaining negotiations following the nation's first postal strike.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the air traffic controllers strike was easing somewhat and plans were being made for reducing emergency flight restrictions in New York and Chicago.

The agency said the 50 per cent flight quotas in the two cities were expected to be raised to 75 per cent. The normal flight quotas were reduced March 29 as the 16-day protest began

Keep Security At Schools

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Safety Director Benjamin O. Davis Jr. says he intends to maintain blanket security in the Collinwood area on the city's East Side until he is certain racial tension has eased.

Collinwood High School reopened Wednesday morning after being closed since Monday following racial flareups between white and Negro pupils.

About 64 per cent of the school's 2,300 pupils attended classes Wednesday as 166 Cleveland policemen provided protection and 700 Ohio National Guardsmen were held in reserve in case violence flared.

The school, located in a predominantly white area abutting the predominantly black East Side, has about 7 per cent white pupils. The other 30 per cent are Negroes, mainly from the Glen Haven section of Collinwood, an area that has been in racial transition for the past three years.

No incidents were reported and the police contingent was reduced to about 65 officers before noon. A small force remained on duty during the night to guard against further vandalism at the high school and nearby Margaret Spellacy Junior High School.

causing air traffic jams.

The airlines are losing $5 to $10 million a day due to the strike, according to Secor D. Browne, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Total losses have been described as more than $50 million by the airlines.

United Air Lines announced it will lay off a total of 400 workers in Chicago and New York due to the strike.

Layoffs already have developed as a result of wildcat trucker strikes, which have been starting and stopping in various cities. They include 15,000 workers idled in Detroit, and another 6,000 in Chicago.

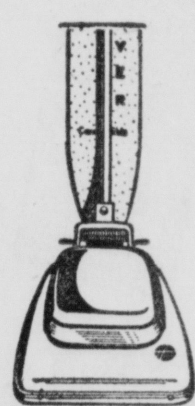

The striking truckers are balking at a tentative national contract calling for a $1.10 per hour raise over three years.

Chicago trucking companies were planning to decide today whether to begin a general lock-out of all union truckers in retaliation for a selective wildcat strike against some companies.

In New York, labor mediator Theodore W. Kheel said negotiations involving 10 unions which represent 13,000 workers at the city's four major daily newspapers looked "very bleak."

One newspaper union official said he plans to begin a strike at one of the papers this week-end if an agreement isn't reached.

Environmental Teach - Ins Slated

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With a sense of urgency, thousands of persons will gather on college and high school campuses across the country April 22 for environmental teach-ins they hope will lead to action against life-threatening pollution.

Organized by students with, in most cases, the approval and cooperation of school authorities and political leaders, Earth Day, as April 22 has been designated, seeks to mobilize support for antipollution measures.

Cleanup campaigns and some demonstrations against major industrial firms are planned along with the teach-in in a show of strength of the growing movement for a clean environment.

Earth Day was suggested last fall by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., and Rep. Paul R. McCloskey, R-Calif. A student-run organization, Environmental Teach-In, Inc., has been formed in Washington to coordinate the national campaign.

Activities are planned at more than 500 colleges and high schools in every section of the nation.

"Earth Day is a commitment to make life better, to provide real rather than rhetorical solutions, to give our children a future," said Steve Hill, student teach-in coordinator at the University of Miami, Fla.

"If things go on as they are now, the climax will be reached in 10 to 20 years and the situation will be irreversible," said Gib Maxson, sophomore Earth Day coordinator at the University of Missouri in St. Louis.

Lyle Livasy, a junior who heads the teach-in group at Ferris State College in Big Rapids, Mich., said, "We like too many luxuries to get back to zero pollution. There's always been pollution, and there always will be. But it doesn't have to be as bad as it is today."

Maxson said that although the response of government and industry has been too slow, "people in groups concerned about environment should use established and legal channels to solve problems and only adopt militant tactics as a last resort."

At the teach-ins, businessmen, politicians and conservationists will describe how they are trying to cope with the problems and suggest methods which must be used in the future.

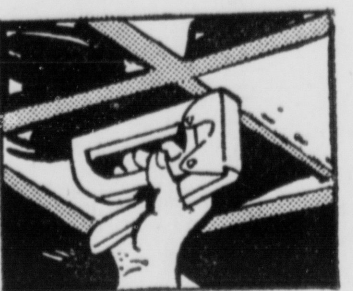

Many schools will have seminars on local problems.

Uphold Dismissal Of Columbus Cop

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The dismissal of former Police Lt. William C. Voorhis on departmental charges was upheld Wednesday by the Civil Service Commission.

Voorhis was one of eight policemen who faced federal gambling conspiracy charges last year and later won acquittal. Departmental charges were based on evidence presented at the trial.

Serious Labor Disputes Continue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Although Congress has acted to avert a nationwide railroad shutdown Saturday, serious labor disputes continued today in the air travel, trucking and newspaper industries.

Congress approved Wednesday a bill requested by President Nixon to impose a nationwide railroad contract that was negotiated last December, but rejected by one small union.

The bill imposes the contract for the rest of 1970 to avoid a shutdown, which railroads had threatened in the event of any strike action Saturday when a congressional strike ban ends.

Both houses passed the bill quickly and overwhelmingly despite a warning by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., that the legislation might be unconstitutional and could fail to prevent wildcat strikes.

The Senate also approved a bill boosting salaries of postal workers and most other federal employees 6 per cent. The $2.5 billion measure survived an effort to limit the raises to postal workers and the military.

Ohioan Identified As Viet Red POW

NEW YORK (AP)—An Ohioan has been identified as one of the 81 servicemen being held prisoner by the North Vietnamese, the antiwar group Committee of Liaison announced here Tuesday.

The committee identified him as William Joseph Baugh, whose mother lives in Piqua.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the air traffic controllers strike was easing somewhat and plans were being made for reducing emergency flight restrictions in New York and Chicago.

The agency said the 50 per cent flight quotas in the two cities were expected to be raised to 75 per cent. The normal flight quotas were reduced March 29 as the 16-day protest began

Keep Security At Schools

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland Safety Director Benjamin O. Davis Jr. says he intends to maintain blanket security in the Collinwood area on the city's East Side until he is certain racial tension has eased.

Collinwood High School reopened Wednesday morning after being closed since Monday following a racial flareup between white and Negro pupils.

About 64 per cent of the school's 2,300 pupils attended classes Wednesday as 166 Cleveland policemen provided protection and 700 Ohio National Guardsmen were held in reserve in case violence flared.

The school, located in a predominantly white area abutting the predominantly black East Side, has about 7 per cent white pupils. The other 30 per cent are Negroes, mainly from the Glen Haven section of Collinwood, an area that has been in racial transition for the past three years.

No incidents were reported and the police contingent was reduced to about 65 officers before noon. A small force remained on duty during the night to guard against further vandalism at the high school and nearby Margaret Spellacy Junior High School.

causing air traffic jams.

The airlines are losing $5 to $10 million a day due to the strike, according to Secor D. Browne, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Total losses have been described as more than $50 million by the airlines.

United Air Lines announced it will lay off a total of 400 workers in Chicago and New York due to the strike.

Layoffs already have developed as a result of wildcat trucker strikes, which have been starting and stopping in various cities. They include 15,000 workers idled in Detroit, and another 6,000 in Chicago.

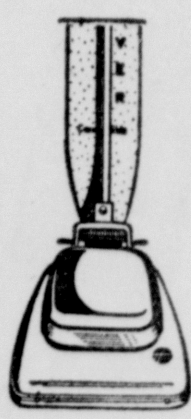

The striking truckers are balking at a tentative national contract calling for a $1.10 per hour raise over three years.

Chicago trucking companies were planning to decide today whether to begin a general lock-out of all union truckers in retaliation for a selective wildcat strike against some companies.

In New York, labor mediator Theodore W. Kheel said negotiations involving 10 unions which represent 13,000 workers at the city's four major daily newspapers looked "very bleak."

One newspaper union official said he plans to begin a strike at one of the papers this week-end if an agreement isn't reached.

Rejection Of Nixon Nominee Brings Criticism, Praise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While his supporters condemned the rejection of Judge C. Harold Carswell for the Supreme Court, civil rights groups hailed the defeat. Others called on President Nixon to nominate a man with eminent qualifications and wide support.

Gov. John J. McKeithen of Louisiana termed the rejection of the Florida judge discrimination against the South. He sent a telegram to President Nixon Wednesday urging him to nominate Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., or U.S. Circuit Court Judge J. P. Coleman of Mississippi.

"This is a great victory for America," said Leonard H. Carter, San Francisco regional director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "There is still hope in our system of government. We need not yield to despair and violence but must continue to work for justice and equality."

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Everyone on the movie set of "Rio Lobo" turned their backs on John Wayne when he returned from Los Angeles with his first Oscar.

The 62-year-old actor grinned when they turned around Wednesday, all of them sporting black eye patches—including his horse.

The patches were part of a gag to commemorate the Duke's portrayal of a hard-drinking, one-eyed lawman in the film "True Grit" which won him the Academy Award's best actor prize.

Behind the actors was a replica of the Oscar, also wearing a patch.

Orientation Center For Blind Concentrates On Cooking

By EDITH M. LEDERER

ALBANY, Calif. (AP)—Rosemarie Grayley sniffed her freshly baked custard, held up a slightly red finger and said: "Only one burn—not bad!"

Dorothy Daniels bent over an electric oven, counted four blobs of glue on the temperature dial and exclaimed: "I've got it—350 degrees."

Linda Havens batted her right hand hesitantly in the air until she touched the edge of her casserole dish. "There it is!" she declared.

These three young women were cooking lunch—a task performed daily by millions of women. But for them there was a difference: each is blind.

Since 1954, the Orientation Center for the Blind, a state-run school, has been teaching blind and partially sighted men and women to cook by touch—some with gourmet results.

Instructor Jane Teeter says there are many difficulties, such as learning to handle hot pots and pans, finding the right ingredients and measuring them properly, and knowing when a dish is finished.

Some sugar cookies have turned out a little salty and some hamburgers have been a little too well done, Mrs. Teeter said in an interview, but anyone who takes the course for four to six months can learn to cook.

Teamsters Vote Down Work Return

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some 3,300 Cleveland Teamsters Union members met Wednesday and voted down a motion to return to work as their strike rolled through its eighth day.

The Cleveland Teamsters, members of Local 407, were the first of Ohio's more than 10,000 truck drivers to walk out on strike April 1.

The voting came shortly after Gov. James A. Rhodes ordered the Ohio Highway Patrol to increase efforts to prevent harassment of nonstriking truckers.

Some 6,000 of Local 407's 8,000 members are affected by a national contract reached in Washington last week. The contract, which calls for a $1.10 - an-hour pay raise over three years, has prompted Teamsters strikes around the country.

In the Akron area, 4,000 truckers of Teamsters Local 24 remained on strike despite an injunction issued by Summit County Common Pleas Court Judge Theodore Price. The injunction, sought by 36 trucking firms, orders truckers to cease picketing and harassment of terminal employees.

The Columbus, Toledo and Youngstown areas also were involved in work stoppages by the Teamsters and the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers.

Some Cleveland Teamsters said they would continue stopping nonstriking drivers. Rhodes warned that he will not tolerate or condone violence on the highways of Ohio.

Local 407 President John Kalnicki said deliveries of such essentials as food and medicine will continue.

Most Ohio drivers have said they want a contract that offers $2 an hour raise over three years, with a $1 - an-hour increase the first year of the contract.

Hruska, a Carswell supporter, had said, "Even if he (Carswell) was mediocre, there are a lot of mediocre judges and people and lawyers. They are entitled to a little representation, aren't they, and a little chance? We can't have all Brandeises and Cardozos and Frankfurters and stuff like that there."

Whitney M. Young, Jr., executive director of the Urban League, said: "Our faith in the Senate has been greatly restored by this action." He urged President Nixon "to nominate someone, from whatever region or political party, whose commitment to racial justice and equality is unquestioned."

Florida State Democratic party Chairman Pat Thomas said, "It is a victory for a few narrow-minded individuals who led the opposition and who are as bigoted as they unfairly accused Judge Carswell of being."

The defeat was called "tangible evidence of sectionalism at its worst" by Alabama Gov. Albert Brewer.

Instructor Jane Teeter says there are many difficulties, such as learning to handle hot pots and pans, finding the right ingredients and measuring them properly, and knowing when a dish is finished.

Some sugar cookies have turned out a little salty and some hamburgers have been a little too well done, Mrs. Teeter said in an interview, but anyone who takes the course for four to six months can learn to cook.

At the end of the course each student cooks a complete meal for eight persons with food the student has purchased in a supermarket.

While shopping, Mrs. Teeter said, blind people must rely on store employees. Otherwise they may end up with canned peaches instead of canned peas.

In the center's kitchen, the cans, drawers, shelves, pans and measuring cups are labeled in braille. Dials on the oven are marked with blobs of glue every 50 degrees starting at 200 degrees.

Reading from a braille recipe, 22-year-old Rosemarie, a Long Beach State college student, began heating milk for her custard.

The problem? To figure out when it was just about to boil. "You stick your finger in it, and when it's hot, you know it's time," Mrs. Teeter explained. "If it boils, you'll hear it."

Lynda, 32-year-old Santa Cruz mother of two, put the finishing touches on her casserole, explaining: "I'm not a good cook. I've made hamburgers and pancakes and flipped one over on top of the other and never known it."

Said 19-year-old Dorothy of Bakersfield: "I like to cook. So far, I've made some pork chops, pancakes, fruit salad, chocolate pie and peach upside down cake. I guess they were pretty good. There wasn't anything left—they ate it all up."

Top Men In Anticrime Unit Reported Ready To Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the government's newest crime fighting agency and one of his top aides are reported ready to resign because of their dissatisfaction over administration efforts to upgrade local law enforcement.

Sources said Charles H. Rogovin, head of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and Henry S. Ruth, director of the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, already have informed administration officials of their intention to resign.

Neither could be reached for comment, but it was learned Ruth will become head of New York Mayor John V. Lindsay's Criminal Justice Coordinating Council.

Rogovin's plans are unknown. There have been periodic reports he will return to Massachusetts to run for state attorney general. He was an assistant attorney general there before coming to Washington to head LEAA.

On Capitol Hill, there were reports a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., which oversees LEAA operations, would probably look into the resignations.

The agency, part of the Justice Department, was created under the Safe Streets Act of 1968. Funds appropriated under the act are channeled to cities, counties and states through LEAA.

Soon after LEAA was set up during the Johnson administration, there were complaints from city officials that LEAA funds were being channeled through the states and most of the money was not getting to major cities.

Teamsters Vote Down Work Return

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some 3,300 Cleveland Teamsters Union members met Wednesday and voted down a motion to return to work as their strike rolled through its eighth day.

The Cleveland Teamsters, members of Local 407, were the first of Ohio's more than 10,000 truck drivers to walk out on strike April 1.

The voting came shortly after Gov. James A. Rhodes ordered the Ohio Highway Patrol to increase efforts to prevent harassment of nonstriking truckers.

Some 6,000 of Local 407's 8,000 members are affected by a national contract reached in Washington last week. The contract, which calls for a $1.10 - an-hour pay raise over three years, has prompted Teamsters strikes around the country.

In the Akron area, 4,000 truckers of Teamsters Local 24 remained on strike despite an injunction issued by Summit County Common Pleas Court Judge Theodore Price. The injunction, sought by 36 trucking firms, orders truckers to cease picketing and harassment of terminal employees.

The Columbus, Toledo and Youngstown areas also were involved in work stoppages by the Teamsters and the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers.

Some Cleveland Teamsters said they would continue stopping nonstriking drivers. Rhodes warned that he will not tolerate or condone violence on the highways of Ohio.

Local 407 President John Kalnicki said deliveries of such essentials as food and medicine will continue.

Most Ohio drivers have said they want a contract that offers $2 an hour raise over three years, with a $1 - an hour increase the first year of the contract.

Ben Hogan Nice Guy, Archer Finds

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Defending Masters champion George Archer had never felt the firm grip of a Ben Hogan handshake until this week, but Augusta National's reigning hero knew of the Texas hawk's history as a cold-staring, unfriendly demolisher of golf courses.

"It's not that way any more," said a surprised Archer. "Ben Hogan is a warm, gentle person and you find it hard to understand how he could have earned that reputation."

Hogan attended the Tuesday night dinner for former Masters kings and Archer said "Ben was obviously touched by all the attention. He got up and asked all of us to try to attend these former-champion dinners for life."

The 57-year-old Hogan won the Masters in 1951-53, but has been idled for two years with bad knees. He flew from his Fort Worth home just for the pre-Masters dinner of champions.

"Maybe he earned that tag of 'Ice Man' when he played," mused Archer, "but he's melted now. He couldn't have been friendlier."

Archer claims the statement that winning a Masters means $1 million to a golfer is "a lot of baloney." He said Wednesday he's "far from being a millionaire and not worrying about it."

"It's just not so," he said. "What you gain is being put in a certain, elite class for life. But, in money, winning here is highly overrated."

HAWKING HIS NEW WARES —And that would be a foot in a cast. Behind this make-up is outfielder Ken (The Hawk) Harrelson, the mod power swinger of the Indians who is at the ball game in Cleveland but out of action for several months. Harrelson broke his leg in an exhibition game in Arizona.

Guillermo Montanez Sent To Philadelphia

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals have sent first baseman Guillermo Montanez to Philadelphia to compensate the Phillies for Curt Flood, who was traded but will not play this year.

General Manager John Quinn of the Phillies said Montanez would play with Philadelphia's Eugene, Ore., Pacific Coast League team.

The Phillies also have the right to choose another player on Aug. 31.

Golf Greats Set To Open Masters Tilt

AUGUSTA, GA. (AP) — Arnold Palmer sniffled and snorted with a bad cold and announced that his golf game "is sounder than it has been in five years opening the Masters."

Coming from a four-time champion, it sounded like a warning to all the rest.

Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and 80 lesser-known Masters invitees started Thursday in the 34th fight for that magic green coat awarded winners at Augusta National Golf Club.

"I feel physically up to it," said the 40-year-old Palmer. "Although I'm not hitting the ball better than past years, my overall game has as much muscle as, well ... as it did in the early 1960s."

Palmer won the Masters in 1958-60-62-64 but hasn't scratched since facing middle age. His following is still the largest, his fans the most adoring, his appeal far above anybody else's. But, Arnold knows that one more green coat and they'll remember forever.

"I can't think of many things I want more than a fifth Masters," he said. "Sure, I'd like to have a PGA championship, too, since I've never won that one. But I'm eager to see what happens at Augusta National this week."

The rolling Augusta National course is a subject of controversy. Some, like Bruce Devlin and Dan Sikes, say it appears in poorer shape than any of their past years here. Nicklaus, on the other hand, says it's not as pretty but is super for pure golf.

Nicklaus has gone through a trying 1970 so far because of the death of his father by cancer. It had been a rich, close father-son relationship since Jack's pee-wee golf era.

"I am as ready as I could have possibly been...under the personal circumstances," he said.

Nicklaus said the bullet-fast greens of Tuesday were not as quick for Wednesday's final tuneup rounds.

Jack and his close pal from amateur golf days, Deane Beman, agreed that the greens are slicker for this Masters than any since 1965.

Devlin agreed.

"The 18th green is so fast that I dropped a ball near the back of the green several times and each time it rolled past the cup located on the front of the green," said the veteran from Australia who now lives in Miami. "Man, that's fast."

NHL Playoffs To Be Rough; Bruins Win, 8-2

By BEN THOMAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Boston Bruins-New York Rangers game could be listed under Wednesday's Fights instead of Wednesday's National Hockey League Playoff Results and sports historians may someday call it the Second Boston Massacre.

The Bruins won the donnybrook 8-2 and if Ranger Coach Emile Francis' prophecy comes true the penalty box is going to be quite crowded for the remainder of the series.

It was one of four games as the NHL opened its best-of-7 quarter-final series for the 1970 Stanley Cup. In the others, Chicago clipped Detroit 4-2, Pittsburgh defeated Oakland 2-1 and St. Louis whipped Minnesota 6-2. They'll each play again tonight.

Phil Esposito's hat trick and Bobby Orr's usually sterling play plus two goals highlighted the non-fighting moments of the Boston Garden clash.

Strategy Gives Giants 5-4 Win Over Astros

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ah, strategy. There's nothing like a good piece of it to turn a ball game around.

There were the San Francisco Giants trailing Houston 4-2 with two out and nobody on in the bottom of the eighth inning Wednesday night. The Giants had lost their opener to the Astros Tuesday and clearly, something had to be done and fast. It was.

Hal Lanier singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Steve Whitaker delivered a pinch double for one run. Now the wheels started turning in earnest. Manager Clyde King sent up left-handed Bob Burda, who had six homers and 27 RBIs last year to bat for righty Bobby Bonds (32 homers, 90 RBIs last season).

That move so shook Houston skipper Harry Walker that he yanked righty Jack Billingham for southpaw Jack Dilauro. King played the percentage game all the way, sending up righty Ron Hunt to pinch hit for pinch hitter Burda. Naturally, it worked.

Hunt singled the tying run across and moments later scampered home with the winner on rookie Allan Gallagher's double. That took no strategy by King. Gallagher already had delivered two hits earlier.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, Atlanta thumped San Diego 6-1, Cincinnati trimmed Los Angeles 5-2 and St. Louis took Montreal 7-2 in the only games scheduled.

Until the managerial wheels began spinning, the Giants and Astros had been engaged in a long ball duel. Dick Dietz tagged a two-run homer for San Francisco and Doug Rader and pinch hitter Jim Beauchamp—a strategy coup by Walker—cracked Houston homers.

Rico Carty drove in four runs for the Braves—three of them on an eighth inning homer that broke the game open, as Atlanta whipped San Diego.

Pat Jarvis hurled a five-hitter and Bob Tillman added a bases-empty homer for the Braves.

Cincinnati won its third straight with Jim McGlothlin beating the Dodgers in his National League debut.

Bobby Tolan tripled and singled, driving in two of the Reds' runs and Clay Carroll nailed down the victory, stopping the Dodgers after McGlothlin tired in the eighth.

It was the third straight strong hurling performance for the supposedly pitcher-poor Reds who got a two-hitter from Gary Nolan Tuesday and a three-hitter from Jim Merritt in Monday's opener.

Richie Allen staged an explosive debut for St. Louis, walloping a homer and two doubles in the Cards' victory over Montreal.

Allen scored the first St. Louis run after doubling in the fourth, then tied the game with a homer in the eighth and drove in two more runs with his ninth-inning double.

Bob Gibson, with ninth-inning help from Chuck Taylor, was the winner, allowing just five hits—only two after the first inning.

Lakers And Phoenix To Collide Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Having battled back from the brink of elimination with two straight triumphs, the Los Angeles Lakers collide with Phoenix tonight in the deciding game of their National Basketball Association playoff.

Bryce Brown scattered eight hits as he went all the way for his first win of the year. Brown struck out five and walked one as he paced himself to victory.

The win was a real team effort as timely hitting, excellent base running and two fine double plays combined with Brown's hurling sent the South Central Ohio League defending champions down to defeat.

"This was the big win for us," Tiger Coach Danny Fouts stated, "and our guys were really up for this one. With two big victories under their belt, they know they have a winning ball club."

HITTING in the clutch was a big factor as Chris Long, Billy Thomas, Ty Ankrom, Harold Smith and Bryce Brown came through with solid hits for the Tigers.

Fine base running by Mike Webb and Tom Bowers led the Tigers to nine stolen bases in the fray.

Westfall Loses Scioto Valley Conference Tilt

Westfall was defeated by Paint Valley, 4-2, Wednesday on the Bearcats diamond in Scioto Valley Conference action.

The loss leaves the Mustangs with a 1-1 record for the season while Paint Valley is 2-0.

Randy Alkire was the losing pitcher. For five innings he hurled no-hit ball.

The Bearcats scored one run in the fifth when Mark Litter walked, stole second, advanced to third on a fielder's choice and then crossed the plate on a sacrifice bunt.

IN the sixth, the Bearcats scored three runs, all unearned. B. Knisley led off with a double. Keith Shoemaker was safe on an error and then both scored on an outfield error. Armstrong, who reached first on the error, scored on a double by Rick Compher.

Alkire went the route on the mound. He struck out two and walked four and allowed two hits.

Westfall's two runs came in the top of the seventh when Steve Dailey, a freshman

Thomas gave the Red and Black the long ball as he came through with a clutch double and a real line drive blast that cleared the fence without any trouble.

Long, with two doubles and Smith with a double, added to the Tiger power attack.

Circleville jumped off to a one run lead in the top of the second but the Lions tied it in their half of the inning. The Tigers added three more in the third, one in the fourth and finished with four big runs in the fifth to wrap up the win. The Lions scored the last run in the third on a big triple by Ross. The first Washington run was unearned.

Sporting a 2-0 record on the season and a 1-0 in league play, the Tigers will travel to Hamilton Twp. tonight for a 4:15 p.m. battle with the Rangers.

Saturday's game with Wilmington has been rescheduled to May 6.

Cincy Bengals Sign Merkich And Blank

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League today signed two offensive linemen from the University of Cincinnati as free agents.

They are Bob Merkich, a 6-3, 245-pounds guard, and Denny Blank, a 6-2, 230-pounds center. Both were teammates of Bengal quarterback Greg Cook when he played with the Bearcats. Cook was voted offensive rookie of the year in 1969.

Golf Greats Set To Open Masters Tilt

AUGUSTA, GA. (AP) — Arnold Palmer sniffed and snorted with a bad cold and announced that his golf game "is sounder than it has been in five years opening the Masters." Coming from a four-time champion, it sounded like a warning to all the rest.

Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and 80 lesser-known Masters invitees started Thursday in the 34th fight for that magic green coat awarded winners at Augusta National Golf Club.

"I feel physically up to it," said the 40-year-old Palmer. "Although I'm not hitting the ball better than past years, my overall game has as much muscle as, well ... as it did in the early 1960s."

Palmer won the Masters in 1958-60-62-64 but hasn't scratched since facing middle age. His following is still the largest, his fans the most adoring, his appeal far above anybody else's. But, Arnold knows that one more green coat and they'll remember forever.

"I can't think of many things I want more than a fifth Masters," he said. "Sure, I'd like to have a PGA championship, too, since I've never won that one. But I'm eager to see what happens at Augusta National this week."

The rolling Augusta National course is a subject of controversy. Some, like Bruce Devlin and Dan Sikes, say it appears in poorer shape than any of their past years here. Nicklaus, on the other hand, says it's not as pretty but is super for pure golf.

Nicklaus has gone through a trying 1970 so far because of the death of his father by cancer. It had been a rich, close father-son relationship since Jack's pee-wee golf era.

"I am as ready as I could have possibly been...under the personal circumstances," he said.

Nicklaus said the bullet-fast greens of Tuesday were not as quick for Wednesday's final tuneup rounds.

Jack and his close pal from amateur golf days, Deane Beman, agreed that the greens are slicker for this Masters than any since 1965.

Devlin agreed.

"The 18th green is so fast that I dropped a ball near the back of the green several times and each time it rolled past the cup located on the front of the green," said the veteran from Australia who now lives in Miami. "Man, that's fast."

Circleville's hot hitting Tigers added another victory to their list Wednesday, blasting Washington C. H., 9-2, on the Blue Lion's diamond.

The win was a real team effort as timely hitting, excellent base running and two fine double plays combined with Brown's hurling sent the South Central Ohio League defending champions down to defeat.

"This was the big win for us," Tiger Coach Danny Fouts stated, "and our guys were really up for this one. With two big victories under their belt, they know they have a winning ball club."

HITTING in the clutch was a big factor as Chris Long, Billy Thomas, Ty Ankrom, Harold Smith and Bryce Brown came through with solid hits for the Tigers.

Fine base running by Mike Webb and Tom Bowers led the Tigers to nine stolen bases in the fray.

Thomas gave the Red and Black the long ball as he came through with a clutch double and a real line drive blast that cleared the fence without any trouble.

Long, with two doubles and Smith with a double, added to the Tiger power attack.

Circleville jumped off to a one run lead in the top of the second but the Lions tied it in their half of the inning. The Tigers added three more in the third, one in the fourth and finished with four big runs in the fifth to wrap up the win. The Lions scored the last run in the third on a big triple by Ross. The first Washington run was unearned.

Sporting a 2-0 record on the season and a 1-0 in league play, the Tigers will travel to Hamilton Twp. tonight for a 4:15 p.m. battle with the Rangers.

Saturday's game with Wilmington has been rescheduled to May 6.

Tiger Golfers Down Logan

Circleville's golfers won their first match of the season downing Logan, 7-4, Wednesday at the Pickaway Country Club.

Greg Heiskell, Mike Vaughan, and Bob Downey won two points each for the Tigers and they added the seventh point on team medal scoring 237 to Logan's 243.

Heiskell, 45, defeated Bruce Goldsberry of Logan, 49.

Vaughan, 41, downed Logan's Bill Henderson, 43.

Circleville's Bob Downey, 50, beat Blosser, 59, of Logan.

Mark Frericks, 53, lost to Beougher, 45, of Logan and Dave Haradon, 48, lost a close match to Helberon, 47, of Logan.

The Tigers will be at Upper Lansdowne Course Friday for a triangular match with Teays Valley and Lancaster. Match time is 4 p.m.

Strategy Gives Giants 5-4 Win Over Astros

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ah, strategy. There's nothing like a good piece of it to turn a ball game around.

There were the San Francisco Giants trailing Houston 4-2 with two out and nobody on in the bottom of the eighth inning Wednesday night. The Giants had lost their opener to the Astros Tuesday and clearly, something had to be done and fast. It worked.

Hal Lanier singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Steve Whitaker delivered a pinch double for one run. Now the wheels started turning in earnest. Manager Clyde King sent up left-handed Bob Burda, who had six homers and 27 RBIs last year to bat for righty Bobby Bonds (32 homers, 90 RBIs last season).

That move so shook Houston skipper Harry Walker that he yanked righty Jack Billingham for southpaw Jack DiLauro. King played the percentage game all the way, sending up righty Ron Hunt to pinch hit for pinch hitter Burda. Naturally, it worked.

Hunt singled the tying run across and moments later scampered home with the winner on rookie Allan Gallagher's double. That took no strategy by King. Gallagher already had delivered two hits earlier.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, Atlanta thumped San Diego 6-1, Cincinnati trimmed Los Angeles 5-2 and St. Louis took Montreal 7-2 in the only games scheduled.

Until the managerial wheels began spinning, the Giants and Astros had been engaged in a long ball duel. Dick Dietz tagged a two-run homer for San Francisco and Doug Rader and pinch hitter Jim Beauchamp—a strategy coup by Walker—cracked Houston homers.

Rico Carty drove in four runs for the Braves—three of them on an eighth inning homer that broke the game open, as Atlanta

Westfall Loses Scioto Valley Conference Tilt

Westfall was defeated by Paint Valley, 4-2, Wednesday on the Bearcats diamond in Scioto Valley Conference action.

The loss leaves the Mustangs with a 1-1 record for the season while Paint Valley is 2-0.

Randy Alkire was the losing pitcher. For five innings he hurled no-hit ball.

The Bearcats scored one run in the fifth when Mark Litter walked, stole second, advanced to third on a fielder's choice and then crossed the plate on a sacrifice bunt.

IN the sixth, the Bearcats scored three runs, all unearned. B. Knisley led off with a double. Keith Shoemaker was safe on an error and then both scored on an outfield error. Armstrong, who reached first on the error, scored on a double by Rick Compher.

Alkire went the route on the mound. He struck out two and walked four and allowed two hits.

Westfall's two runs came in the top of the seventh when Steve Dailey, a freshman

Pat Jarvis hurled a five-hitter and Bob Tillman added a bases-empty homer for the Braves.

Cincinnati won its third straight with Jim McGlothlin beating the Dodgers in his National League debut.

Bobby Tolan tripled and singled, driving in two of the Reds' runs and Clay Carroll nailed down the victory, stopping the Dodgers after McGlothlin tired in the eighth.

It was the third straight strong hurling performance for the supposedly pitcher-poor Reds who got a two-hitter from Gary Nolan Tuesday and a three-hitter from Jim Merritt in Monday's opener.

Richie Allen staged an explosive debut for St. Louis, wallowing a homer and two doubles in the Cards' victory over Montreal.

Allen scored the first St. Louis run after doubling in the fourth, then tied the game with a homer in the eighth and drove in two more runs with his ninth-inning double.

Bob Gibson, with ninth-inning help from Chuck Taylor, was the winner, allowing just five hits—only two after the first inning.

McGlothlin Leads Cincy To 5-2 Win Over Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It was before Wednesday night's game with Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium and Cincinnati righthander Jim McGlothlin, noting the splendid performances the previous two nights by pitching mates Jim Merritt and Gary Nolan, smiled and remarked: "These guys really put on the pressure. It's going to be tough topping their acts."

McGlothlin, the former California Angel making his first National League start, didn't top Merritt and Nolan. But he came close.

He allowed the Dodgers just one hit through five innings, finally left in the eighth but still posted a 5-2 triumph, the Reds' third straight victory.

Merritt hurled a three-hitter Monday to beat Montreal and Nolan came back with a two-hit shutout Tuesday against the Dodgers.

"It meant a lot beating the Dodgers," McGlothlin said, smiling. "There was all the talk about the Dodgers and all when I was with the Angels. And, of course, I grew up right here. But most of all, it was my first National League start and I wanted it to be a good one."

McGlothlin, 8-16 last season with California, gave way to Clay Carroll in the eighth after giving up only five singles. Carroll had to work out of a tough ninth inning when the Dodgers, produced back-to-back singles by Steve Garvey and Tom Haller for their only serious threat of the evening.

Bill Singer, who won 20 games last year for the Dodgers, absorbed the loss.

The Reds got a run in the first inning on singles by Bobby Tolan and Pete Rose. Rookie Bernie Carbo drove home the second run in the fourth. And Tolan tripled and scored to highlight Cincinnati's two-run fifth inning.

The Dodgers were blanked until the sixth when Ted Sizemore and Jim Lefebvre singled. Sizemore then scored on Maury Wills' infield out. Willie Davis drove in the Dodgers' other run in the eighth, scoring Wills with an infield out.

Orioles Defeat Indians, 3-2; Both Managers Get Scares

WHO'S ON THIRD?—Well, there's Graig Nettles (top), the Indians' new third baseman, and Paul Blair (below), the Orioles' outfielder, and they're both on third as Blair pulls a steal during game with the Tribe in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Manager Earl Weaver of the Baltimore Orioles and Alvin Dark, manager of the Cleveland Indians, had scares Wednesday as the Orioles edged the Indians, 3-2, for their second victory of the young season.

Weaver's came in the sixth inning when Frank Robinson, his star right fielder, was hit on the right hand by a pitch from Steve Hargan.

"It was a fast ball," Robinson said. "He was throwing out of the sun into the shadows and I just didn't pick up the ball until it was too late."

"I'm all right. The hand feels okay," Weaver said that Robinson would be in the lineup for the finale of the three-game series today unless his hand is "swollen or too sore."

Dark had a sinking feeling in the ninth inning when Tony Horton was hit on the side of the head by a ball off the bat of Dave May. The ball took a bad bounce on the infield and kayced Horton momentarily.

"I still feel a little woozy," said the big first baseman as he headed for the trainer's room.

Dark said that Horton would be in the lineup "as long as he can swing a bat."

Performances of the pitchers were bright spots for Dark despite the Indians' second loss to the defending American League champions.

Denver Rips Dallas; Wins 152-113

Spencer Haywood popped in 40 points in Denver's trouncing of Dallas, clinching a tie for the top spot in the American Basketball Association's Western Division and the Rockets can clinch the title with a victory Friday.

Wednesday night was Haywood's as he triggered the Rockets to a 152-113 triumph over Dallas. The rookie hit on 17 field goals and six-of-nine free throws. He also grabbed 26 rebounds as the Rockets set a league record, snaring 93. The old mark was 87 by Pittsburgh. Denver needs only to beat Miami at home Friday to win the West.

The clinching was delayed as runnerup Washington, 3 1/2 games back, knocked off the Floridians 141-137 in the opener of a doubleheader at Los Angeles before the Stars downed New Orleans 108-102. In other games, Carolina stopped Kentucky 110-106 and Pittsburgh downed New York 117-107.

Rick Barry scored seven of Washington's last 11 points in the Caps' victory. In all, Barry had 36 points while Don Freeman led Miami with 32.

Los Angeles' triumph over New Orleans enabled the Stars to open a 1 1/2 game lead over the Buccaneers in their struggle for fourth place and the final playoff berth in the West.

Craig Raymond and Mack Calvin topped Los Angeles with 24 points apiece. Red Robbins was high for the Bucs, also with 24.

Press Claim To Produce Inquest Record

BOSTON (AP) — The court stenographer at the Mary Jo Kopechne inquest was due in the state Supreme Court today to press his claim that he alone has the right to reproduce and sell copies of the inquest record.

Sidney R. Lipman, a Boston professional court reporter, and his crew took the notes and typed the 960-page transcript of testimony during the inquiry into the death of Miss Kopechne, in a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Lipman won an oral order by the court Wednesday directing Superior Court Clerk Edward V. Keating not to release the papers pending further directions.

The news media planned to pay the expenses of reproducing the record under Keating's direction, so that all could get copies at the same time.

Lipman said he had contracts with news agencies to sell them copies of the transcript.

On orders by the state Supreme Court, the inquest was held in secret, with the transcript and judge's report impounded after the hearing.

The court rule said the record would be held secret until all chance criminal prosecution in the case was ended.

A special session of the Dukes grand jury held its own inquiry Monday and Tuesday, then adjourned with the announcement it had no report to make.

Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis then prepared a certificate as required by the Supreme Court order of last fall, saying that no further prosecution was proposed.

The certificate was filed Wednesday, and Judge Wilfred J. Paquet, whose 1st Criminal Session Court is in charge of the impounded papers, had been expected to release them in a day or so.

OU Students Set Protest March

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Leaders of an organization protesting university fee increases hope to amass 10,000 students in a march on the Statehouse in Columbus April 18.

Margie Hart, an Ohio University student spokesman, said final plans for the march will be announced Saturday following a meeting here of student representatives of 11 participating universities.

She said she spoke for a group known as Students for Reasonable Fees, which hopes to "use peaceful means to make students a viable political voice" in Ohio.

The oldest Michigan State varsity swimming record still on the books belongs to Billy Stewart. He negotiated 1,500 meters in 18:26.2 in 1959.

Covington Has Trouble

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Covington police, in riot garb, continued to patrol the predominantly Negro east side today following a black-white confrontation in a 24 block Negro area late Wednesday night.

The streets were empty shortly after midnight after police declared a curfew and ordered all persons off the streets. Four white youths were arrested in the area but were released to their parents. No blacks were arrested.

A few minor injuries were reported and several autos, including three police cruisers, were damaged by rocks.

Police sealed off the area late Wednesday in an attempt to keep black and white students from battling in the aftermath of three days of racial problems at Covington Holmes High school.

The entire 80 man force was called to duty when bands of Negro youths roamed the area pelting automobiles and shouting.

Detroit Again Tops Senators, 3-0

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

As far as the Washington Senators are concerned, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn suspended the wrong Detroit Tiger pitcher.

Joe Niekro is the latest Tiger hurler to take up some of the slack caused by the gambling suspension of Denny McLain, ace of the Detroit staff.

The 25-year-old right-hander, obtained from San Diego in an off-season trade, made his American League debut a rousing success Wednesday night with a six-hit, 3-0 blanking of the Senators.

It was the second shutout of the slugging Senators in three days by the supposedly weakened Detroit mound corps, although they were battered for 17 hits and 14 runs in the middle game of the series. Mickey Lolich stopped Washington on seven hits opening day.

Elsewhere, pitching also was the order of the day—and night. Kansas City's Dick Drago stopped Oakland 2-0 on a four-hitter, Mike Cuellar hurled Baltimore past Cleveland 3-2 and three California pitchers combined to hand Milwaukee its second straight setback 6-1.

Bill Freehan's two-run homer in the seventh inning following Willie Horton's single broke up a duel between Niekro and Washington's much-traveled George Brunet, now with his eighth major league team.

Niekro worked out of three jams in the first six innings, getting Ken McMullen for the third out each time with runners on base.

Drago didn't permit Oakland a hit after the fourth inning and allowed only four runners as far as second base. He got the only run he needed in the fourth inning when Amos Otis singled.

took second on an infield out and rode home on Ed Kirkpatrick's single.

The Royals picked up an insurance run in the eighth when Bob Oliver doubled, moved up on Kirkpatrick's grounder and scored on a perfect suicide squeeze bunt by Luis Alcaraz.

The defending champion Orioles made it two in a row over Cleveland, scoring all three runs in the second inning and holding on behind Cuellar's five-hit pitching.

Baltimore scored off loser Barry Moore on Dave Johnson's single, Andy Etchebarren's pop fly double, a walk to Don Buford, Mark Belanger's two-run single and a passed ball by Ray Fosse.

The Indians got one run back on Tony Horton's fourth-inning homer and closed out the scoring in the eighth on Larry Brown's triple and Eddie Leon's sacrifice fly.

Bill Voss drove in four runs with a triple, two doubles and a single to pace California past Milwaukee. Voss singled home a run in the first, doubled home another in the third, tripled one across in the eighth and knocked in his fourth with a ninth-inning double.

Tom Murphy started for the Angels but needed help from Rudy May and Ken Tatum, both in the seventh.

Wednesday night was Haywood's as he triggered the Rockets to a 152-113 triumph over Dallas. The rookie hit on 17 field goals and six-of-nine free throws. He also grabbed 26 rebounds as the Rockets set a league record, snaring 93. The old mark was 87 by Pittsburgh. Denver needs only to beat Miami at home Friday to win the West.

The clinching was delayed as runnerup Washington, 3½ games back, knocked off the Floridians 141-137 in the opener of a doubleheader at Los Angeles before the Stars downed New Orleans 108-102. In other games, Carolina stopped Kentucky 110-106 and Pittsburgh downed New York 117-107.

Rick Barry scored seven of Washington's last 11 points in the Caps' victory. In all, Barry had 36 points while Don Freeman led Miami with 32.

Los Angeles' triumph over New Orleans enabled the Stars to open a 1½ game lead over the Buccaneers in their struggle for fourth place and the final playoff berth in the West.

Craig Raymond and Mack Calvin topped Los Angeles with 24 points apiece. Red Robbins was high for the Bucs, also with 24.

Performances of the pitchers were bright spots for Dark despite the Indians' second loss to the defending American League champions.

Press Claim To Produce Inquest Record

BOSTON (AP) — The court stenographer at the Mary Jo Kopechne inquest was due in the state Supreme Court today to press his claim that he alone has the right to reproduce and sell copies of the inquest record.

Sidney R. Lipman, a Boston professional court reporter, and his crew took the notes and typed the 960-page transcript of testimony during the inquiry into the death of Miss Kopechne, in a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Lipman won an oral order by the court Wednesday directing Superior Court Clerk Edward V. Keating not to release the papers pending further directions.

The news media planned to pay the expenses of reproducing the record under Keating's direction, so that all could get copies at the same time.

Lipman said he had contracts with news agencies to sell them copies of the transcript.

On orders by the state Supreme Court, the inquest was held in secret, with the transcript and judge's report impounded after the hearing.

The court rule said the record would be held secret until all chance criminal prosecution in the case was ended.

A special session of the Dukes grand jury held its own inquiry Monday and Tuesday, then adjourned with the announcement it had no report to make.

Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis then prepared a certificate as required by the Supreme Court order of last fall, saying that no further prosecution was proposed.

The certificate was filed Wednesday, and Judge Wilfred J. Paquet, whose 1st Criminal Session Court is in charge of the impounded papers, had been expected to release them in a day or so.

Covington Has Trouble

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Covington police, in riot garb, continued to patrol the predominantly Negro east side today following a black-white confrontation in a 24 block Negro area late Wednesday night.

The streets were empty shortly after midnight after police declared a curfew and ordered all persons off the streets. Four white youths were arrested in the area but were released to their parents. No blacks were arrested.

A few minor injuries were reported and several autos, including three police cruisers, were damaged by rocks.

Police sealed off the area late Wednesday in an attempt to keep black and white students from battling in the aftermath of three days of racial problems at Covington Holmes High school.

The entire 80 man force was called to duty when bands of Negro youths roamed the area pelting automobiles and shouting.

Detroit Again Tops Senators, 3-0

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

As far as the Washington Senators are concerned, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn suspended the wrong Detroit Tiger pitcher.

Joe Niekro is the latest Tiger hurler to take up some of the slack caused by the gambling suspension of Denny McLain, ace of the Detroit staff.

The 25-year-old right-hander, obtained from San Diego in an off-season trade, made his American League debut a rousing success Wednesday night with a six-hit, 3-0 blanking of the Senators.

It was the second shutout of the slugger Senators in three days by the supposedly weakened Detroit mound corps, although they were battered for 17 hits and 14 runs in the middle game of the series. Mickey Lolich stopped Washington on seven hits opening day.

Elsewhere, pitching also was the order of the day—and night. Kansas City's Dick Drago stopped Oakland 2-0 on a four-hitter, Mike Cuellar hurled Baltimore past Cleveland 3-2 and three California pitchers combined to hand Milwaukee its second straight setback 6-1.

Bill Freehan's two-run homer in the seventh inning following Willie Horton's single broke up a duel between Niekro and Washington's much-traveled George Brunet, now with his eighth major league team.

Niekro worked out of three jams in the first six innings, getting Ken McMullen for the third out each time with runners on base.

Drago didn't permit Oakland a hit after the fourth inning and allowed only four runners as far as second base. He got the only run he needed in the fourth inning when Amos Otis singled.

single and a passed ball by Ray Fosse.

The Indians got one run back on Tony Horton's fourth-inning homer and closed out the scoring in the eighth on Larry Brown's triple and Eddie Leon's sacrifice fly.

Bill Voss drove in four runs with a triple, two doubles and a single to pace California past Milwaukee. Voss singled home a run in the first, doubled home another in the third, tripled one across in the eighth and knocked in his fourth with a ninth-inning double.

Tom Murphy started for the Angels but needed help from Rudy May and Ken Tatum, both in the seventh.

OU Students Set Protest March

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Leaders of an organization protesting university fee increases hope to amass 10,000 students in a march on the Statehouse in Columbus April 18.

Margie Hart, an Ohio University student spokesman, said final plans for the march will be announced Saturday following a meeting here of student representatives of 11 participating universities.

She said she spoke for a group known as Students for Reasonable Fees, which hopes to "use peaceful means to make students a viable political voice" in Ohio.

The oldest Michigan State varsity swimming record still on the books belongs to Billy Steuart. He negotiated 1,500 meters in 18:26.2 in 1959.

1970 Census Nearing Completion

Be patient. Your census taker is coming. Joseph H. Hoyt, district manager, reports that the 1970 Census of Population and Housing is nearing completion in the area. In about another week, the census takers should have visited every residence on their lists.

Census takers began visiting households on April 1 and have been working continuously to cover their territories. The district manager asks that householders hold their questionnaires, which were delivered prior to April 1, and have them filled out, ready for the census taker to pick up. This will save time for both the householder and the census taker and speed up the completion of the census.

For every fifth household, the census taker will have a longer questionnaire which she will fill out by interviewing a member of the household. The District Manager asks householders to welcome these census takers when they call and to give them full cooperation in getting the required census information.

Most of the census takers are women. Each wear a red and white and blue identification badge which is her official credential. It bears her signature and certifies that she is authorized to perform the duties of a Census Enumerator and has sworn to keep confidential all census information given her.

Fair Skies Predominant

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fair and mild weather dominated wide areas of the nation today. Showers were confined to the Pacific Northwest and parts of the Midwest.

A storm system spinning into Canada north of the Great Lakes region left a backlash of blustery winds over the northern lakes.

Cold air which dipped into the Plains and Rockies early Wednesday generally lost its sting as it fanned south and eastward. Overnight temperatures in the 40s and 50s were common across the nation. Chilly exceptions were the upper Rockies and the northern Great Lakes.

Thundershowers scattered rain into parts of the southern Midwest during the night. Rain also damped sections of the Northwest.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 24 at International Falls, Minn., to 74 at Key West, Fla.

FHA Week Honored By Chapter

April 5 through 11 has been designated National FHA Week. During this week members of Future Homemakers of America will carry out special projects and activities designed to share their experiences and achievements with family friends and neighbors.

The theme chosen for this year's National FHA Week is "25 Years of Sterling Opportunity," tying in with the objective for this 25th anniversary year of Future Homemakers of America, "To Promote Communication for the Improvement of Human Relationships."

Adel Riegel, State Adviser points out that several million young people have been challenged by the unlimited opportunities offered through membership in Future Homemakers of America over the 25 years since its establishment as a national organization for home economics students in junior and senior high schools.

"They have had an opportunity to grow as an individual," she stated, "to contribute to home and family living, develop leadership and cooperation, open doors of service to others, prepare for a vocation or profession, make new friends, find new experiences, gain an understanding of others, make creative and constructive use of leisure time and most importantly, be a part of a national organization of 604,000 teenagers concerned with people, families and communities."

The sixty members of the Amanda-Clearcreek chapter of the Ohio Association has scheduled a number of activities for this week. Plans outlined by Mrs. Mary Kay Lands include Family Spiritual Fitness Day, Color Day, Family Unity Day, Breakfast for the Teachers, Career Day, Publicity Day and a banquet with the FFA.

Chaplain Quits Penitentiary Post After Search

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Catholic chaplain at Ohio Penitentiary has quit his post because he said he was "humiliated" by a search of the chapel and his office by prison officials.

Father Paul Cronin said he quit the position because he "could not stand any more humiliation than they have heaped upon me." He said the prison officials had "tore the Catholic chapel apart and my office as if I were a common thief."

Warden Harold C. Cardwell said today Father Cronin's resignation came as a complete surprise to him. He said the chapel and offices had been found unlocked, and then searched.
